'Royal' Separate Services Get Deep Six Today

By MARK DICKINSON

The Royal Canadian Navy ceased to exist this morning. So did the Royal Canadian Air Force and the Canadian Army.

At midnight, the three services officially fell under one title: The Canadian Armed Forces.

The proclamation was met with no ceremony, but many a faithful serviceman quietly, in his own way, marked the loss of his profession's title.

New Ensign

The only sign of change today will be a new flag fluttering over defence department property.

The new Canadian Forces ensign is a white flag, with the Canadian flag in the upper left quarter and the new insignia of the unified force prominent on the right side.

Complete unification is not expected until early 1972.

Defence Minister Leo Cadieux described the official proclamation of the Canadian Armed Forces Reorganization Act as:

"A step in an evolutionary process — a very important step, but only one in a series."

Began in '64

The White Paper that spelled out the roles and missions of the Canadian forces and forecast unification was submitted to the House of Commons in March, 1964.

In July that year, a chief of defence staff was established to replace chiefs of individual services.

And the next month, chief of defence staff and heads of new branches and Canadian Forces headquarters were appointed.

The Reorganization Act, B.C. 243, was presented to Parliament in December, 1966, and given final reading last April.

Tasks Ahead

For the past eight months, headquarters staffs have been busy rewriting Queen's Regulations and Orders, and other orders and instructions, for today's official proclamation.

The main tasks ahead are the completion of the personnel structure, the implementation of a common system of supply and administration and the introduction of whatever uniform is decided upon as the result of current trials.

It is expected the force will be fully equipped with a new uniform by 1971. Reserves will get the uniform later.

"Officially, we'll still be 'sailors,' 'soldiers' and 'airmen' after Thursday," a spokesman said.

"And we'll still identify ourselves, less officially of course, as 'navy,' 'army' and 'air force' for a while yet."

"New allegiances will develop gradually, because a new uniform and unified procedures and practices throughout the force can't be taken into effect overnight," he said.

"At the same time, the men will remain loyal to the traditional identification of the units to which they belong — the ship, the squadron, the regiment, the headquarters."

Patient Suffering Rapped

B.C. TOLD TO QUIT MENTAL BUSINESS

The provincial government was told by Patrick McGeer (L-Point Grey) in the legislature Wednesday to get out of the business of acute psychiatric care.

Mental patients in this province are denied the full advantages of modern psychiatry and made to suffer needlessly because the system used in provincial mental health services is wrong, the Liberal member said.

He called on the government "to face your moment of truth" and said as a start it should get out of the Cressie Clinic section of Riverview where only two qualified psychiatrists care for more than 300 acute patients. Five other doctors — not qualified psychiatrists — assist them.

'CALL NEW TEAM'

Dr. McGeer, a medical scientist, told the government: "You can't run the hospital. You can't staff it. You can't provide after care for the patients. Get out and call in a new team."

He added: "If this were a private hospital instead of a government hospital you would order its doors closed."

Health Minister Black, who was absent from his seat when Dr. McGeer began his blistering attack, returned at this point. He interrupted the Liberal member asking: "Is that the psychiatrists' brief you're reading from?"

DOORS OPENED

Dr. McGeer replied that he was suggesting the only course of action which would solve the recurring crisis in mental health services in the province. He added failure to do so would mean that next session the minister once more would be charging an opposition plot.

Cressie Clinic must be put under the B.C. Hospital Insurance Service and its doors opened to the 100 qualified psychiatrists in the Lower Mainland who at present are not allowed to treat their patients in Riverview.

'FIRST STEP'

Let these psychiatrists admit their patients to Cressie Clinic and look after them, said Dr. McGeer. He added: "Better still, turn Cressie Clinic into a community general hospital and trade some of its beds for additional psychiatric beds in lower Mainland hospitals."

"This would be a start," he said, "the first step in a drive

Benson Hopeful

NHA Bid Will Aid Purchases

OTTAWA (CP) — Treasury Board President E. J. Benson hopes to speed a legislative amendment through Parliament this month that could halve down payments on NHA homes.

He is looking for informal pledges from the Conservatives and New Democrats to pass the measure with little debate. The government will at all costs avoid a full-scale housing debate before the current session of Parliament ends in March.

On a home with an assessed lending value of $18,000, the existing formula would provide a maximum loan of $18,550, indicating a down-payment requirement of at least $2,450.

The new formula would permit the home buyer to borrow 95 per cent of the lending value to a limit of $18,000. On the $18,000 home, the individual could borrow up to the full $18,000, leaving him with a down payment of only $1,000.

Coal Order Kicks Off Superport

By IAN STREET
Legislative Reporter

British Columbia will see to it that the first shipments of a $650,000,000 order of Fernie coal for Japan will flow through a new superport at Roberts Bank by 1970, Premier Bennett promised Wednesday night.

This will be done, hopefully in co-operation with Ottawa under a proposed federal-provincial harbor authority, but failing that by B.C. alone under the provincial harbors board legislation passed last spring, Mr. Bennett said.

Referring to a B.C. proposal for joint action on the Roberts Bank project, the premier said: "We're pushing for it, we want it, and we're ready to set it up right away."

The provincial government is ready to contribute $5,000,000 in "seed money" to get the project started, matching a similar amount promised by Transport Minister Paul Hellyer in Ottawa.

tawa, just as soon as agreement is reached with federal authorities, Mr. Bennett added.

When asked about an apparent condition in the contract signed early Wednesday in Tokyo requiring a guarantee within 60 days that the superport will go ahead, he snapped: "I make no guarantees to anyone."

The responsibility of this government to the people of B.C. is for action, the premier said. He added: "There never has been any doubt about Roberts Bank going ahead. We hope it will be done in co-operation with the federal government; but, in any case, we will go ahead."

The provincial government is ready to contribute $5,000,000 in "seed money" to get the project started, matching a similar amount promised by Transport Minister Paul Hellyer in Ottawa.

'An Awful Lot for B.C.'

B.C.'s side of the bargain could be approved "within two days," said Mr. Bennett, but federal participation might take longer to work out. He urged Ottawa to act with all possible speed so that the project could get started.

"It will do an awful lot for Vancouver and B.C. when this bulk-handling port is in operation," the premier said. "It will go around the world in shipping circles because this is Canada's key outlet to the great Pacific market."

Mr. Bennett said he felt the CPR and the Great Northern would share the traffic of Fernie coal to Roberts Bank, "perhaps 50-50."

Commercial Transport Minister Robert Bonner, who recently talked to Kaiser Steel officials in Oakland, Calif., about rail freight handling of Fernie coal bound for Japan, said the economics of the contract — 51,000,000 tons over 15 years — demand new port facilities.

He added that experts from the B.C. Energy Board would study the terms of the agreement over the next few days and following this period there Continued on Page 2

Inside Saigon

Divebombers Hammer Cong

SAIGON (UPI)—Allied planes today divebombed Viet Cong strongholds in Saigon's Chinatown and more U.S. tanks and troops smashed against guerrilla invaders in South Vietnam's battle of the cities.

The planes struck guerrilla units holed up in the maze of shanty streets and alleys of Cholon, Saigon's sister city and longtime Viet Cong haunt.

Other Viet Cong units battled from pagoda grounds and rooftops throughout the city and U.S. Lt. Gen. Frederick Weyand said 2,000 to 2,500 guerrillas had been deployed in the capital. He warned they had the power to keep up their offensive.

TANKS CALLED IN

U.S. commanders ordered American troops and tanks in from the jungle and sent them against the unprecedented Viet Cong sweep hitting more than a dozen South Vietnam cities.

In Washington, President Johnson's advisers were reported predicting fresh Viet Cong attacks plus the threatened invasion by 50,000 North Vietnamese troops poised on the northern border. In Saigon, U.S. Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker conferred with President Nguyen Van Thieu of South Vietnam who has ordered his nation under martial law for the first time to counter the Viet Cong invasion of the cities.

NEAR PALACE

Across the streets from Thieu's marble palace, GIs today raced up ladders and smashed into a Viet Cong machinegun nest that had been peppering the heart of Saigon. In the slums of southwestern Saigon, guerrillas battled allied troops from the grounds of the tin-roofed An Quang Pagoda. From the pagoda, a monk in quavering voice told UPI by telephone that the bullets were falling "like raindrops."

According to military spokesmen the fighting was stiffer elsewhere. In Hue, the ancient Imperial capital 400 miles northeast of Saigon and just below the North Vietnam border, American marines were reported to have smashed into the northern half of the city which the Communists had seized Wednesday.

'Satellite' Care Set For Disturbed Young

By JOHN MATTERS

A network of cottage-type centres throughout B.C. for the treatment of emotionally disturbed children was proposed Wednesday by Health Minister Wesley Black. The whole regional mental health centre program would be expanded by 50 per cent this fiscal year.

Each local centre would be able to handle eight to 12 children in the communities where, in most cases, they have been raised and have their families.

The health minister, speaking in the throne-speech debate, said the new centre in Burnaby for treatment of emotionally-disturbed children would be the principal ingredient of the plan. The 100-bed unit will open this year.

FOR TRAINING

In addition to handling the most difficult cases, Burnaby will also be the place for training the staff which will work in the satellites.

"This plan will not evolve overnight," the minister said later in an interview. "We have to go slow. We are not trying to touch all the bases at one time."

It could not be ascertained if the proposal would alter the status of Sevenoaks, the Family and Children's Service agency which has facilities for the treatment of about 25 emotionally-disturbed children in Victoria. Most of its financing is from provincial sources.

Mr. Black suggested homes could be bought in the local Continued on Page 8

Separatism Talk 'Pure Politics'

Premier Bennett said Wednesday night he wants to make it clear that "all this talk about separatism is pure partisan politics" on the part of the NDP and Liberals.

He made the comment outside the legislature, adding: "We're Canadians first, last and all the time, and if Canada ever breaks up, B.C.

will be the last to go. But I don't think it ever will."

The first 100 years of Confederation were the hardest, Mr. Bennett said, adding he was confident the country was going to solve its difficulties.

But he rejected outright a suggestion made by the Liberals in the legislature Wednesday afternoon that representatives of both opposition parties in B.C. accompany him to Ottawa for the federal-provincial conference on constitutional issues, starting Monday.

Patrick McGeer (L—Point Grey) said the government shouldn't approach the conference from a narrow political point of view. He suggested Opposition Leader Robert Strachan for the NDP and Liberal leader Ray Perrault be added to the B.C. delegation.

"This is the way to get a broad point of view from B.C., and we should do no less," said Dr. McGeer. Mr. Perrault later issued a statement which said the premier had been advised that "Ottawa views with favor" inclusion of provincial opposition party members.

Mr. Bennett, when asked whether he would act on the request, replied, "The Liberal party is doing a great job here, and underline that 'great'."

Mr. Strachan, also asked to comment, said he hadn't been invited, but would like to attend the Ottawa conference. He said: "If we are examining the constitution of Canada, every shade of political thought should be heard."

Britain Loses Cool But Not Victoria

ABREAST OF THE TIMES: Geography played a cruel trick on London barrow-boy Mark Nykerk. He sold a rubber doll called Sexy Anna and was fined £2. A magistrate ruled the Japanese-made six-inch doll indecent so the street vendor was hit for $5.20.

If he had sold the same Sexy Anna in Victoria, not a soul would have cared.

The dolls are readily available for 95 cents, but Nora Stackard, who runs the Fort Street Trick Shop, reports no heavy demand. I dropped around to see if wicked Victoria was interested in the doll, but what's banned in cosmopolitan London is small stuff here.

Sexy Anna drops the top of her bikini when she is squeezed, with what her blue box describes as "delicious action, a bachelor's delight."

For the swingers who think big, there are six-foot-high plastic blow-up dolls, but they come high. The U.S. price is $89.50 but Mrs. Stackard says, "They would cost half as much again landed here, so we have only had inquiries so far."

"We sell plenty of false fronts and bottoms at $1.59 and $1.95 — mostly to men. I outfitted three Lady Godivas last year and even included a blonde wig. But a good plastic bust costs $2.98 and they are really made of heavy plastic."

There are even blow-up legs complete with a nylon stocking, shoe and garter for the playboy who wants something to pop out of his birthday cake.

One thing seems sure — it will be a long time before the bottom drops out of Mrs. Stackard's business. Sorry about poor Mark Nykerk. Perhaps he can sell off his stock cheap in Victoria.

BONE TO PICK: George Hess at the Colony Inn has come up with the instant high-protein lunch for the customers who feel they are just getting too many calories in the bar.

He combines a grilled pork chop, a jumbo prawn and two chicken wings with a cluster of French fries and a spicy crabapple. Mr. Hess puts them in a wooden bowl and calls it his Tom Jones special. The creation is eaten from the fingers without benefit of cutlery. For the fastidious, Mr. Hess provides a finger-bowl and a slice of lemon. All this for $1.

THERE'S NO WAY: It seems Air Canada overbooked the flight to Vancouver one day this week. Symphony conductor Laszlo Gati and French violinist Christian Ferras were told there were no places, so they and two others were offered a trip to Vancouver in a small airplane. The enigmatic Hungarian conductor just looked at it and said, "They have to be kidding."

Four braver souls finally agreed to take the adventure tour, and Mr. Gati went on to Calgary to fill a conducting date.

COULD BE SOON: The recommendations of the culture committee have gone to the provincial cabinet for approval. So far the methods of divvying up the interest from the $5,000,000 set aside last January are not known, but there have been a few stabs in the dark.

The word is that major grants have gone to the established groups like the orchestras and the galleries while a fund has been set aside for the smaller organizations. Exact date for announcing the bounty is not known.

NO GO-GO: The announcement of the Club Camos was premature. Spokesman for the company handling the sale of the Stuart Building says there is no deal to have a night spot at the Douglas and Johnson location.

J. B. Law of Pemberton Holmes Ltd. said, "We had inquiries from people interested in starting a club, and they assumed the space was available. It is not, but they must have acted on their assumption."

Questioned on the possibility of the premises being used to house the Victoria branch of the Bank of British Columbia, the real estate man was cautious. All he said was, "It would make rather a nice bank." It still seems to me like the spot.

in hormone level can have an effect on loss of calcium without sufficient replenishment of new calcium in the bones.

Thus giving hormones is one step toward relieving the trouble. The diet should include sufficient protein and calcium (milk or skim milk or cream cheese is rich in calcium), and sometimes a vitamin supplement to encourage depositing of calcium is helpful, too.

BONE STRENGTH Finally — this is a very simple thing, and overlooked by some patients perhaps because it is so simple — exercise is important. Why? Because exercise plays an important part in developing strength of the bones.

I do not, of course, mean that exercise has to be intense or prolonged, but just keeping active will help harden the bones again, and as this occurs, the discomfort from the softening or "crumbling" is eased.

should be a further announcement.

Commenting on reports that Mr. Hellyer would be on the Coast this weekend, Mr. Bonner said he was in communication with the federal minister about Roberts Bank, but had received no indication of the visit. He added: "I'd be glad to meet him if there is something to be discussed."

Mr. Bonner said the government's long-term interest in Roberts Bank was prompted by a desire to rescue what had become "a foundering commercial project for the Fernie area," the coal industry.

The Tokyo announcement was made by J. L. Ashby, president of Kaiser Steel Corporation, and Chujiro Jukino, president of Mitsubishi-Sohji Kaisha, representing seven big Japanese steel producers.

Mr. Ashby said Kaiser would buy the 65,000-acre Crows Nest Industries Ltd. coal property at Fernie and start right away on a $55,000,000 development and construction program there.

Canadian Pacific Railway said in Montreal that it was ready to begin a massive shuttle program to carry the coal 700 miles from Fernie to Roberts Bank in three 100-car "unit trains."

Some confusion was injected into the announcement when Mr. Hellyer told the House of Commons that the deal included a guarantee of use of an all-Canadian rail route from Fernie to Roberts Bank.

Meanwhile, a spokesman for Crows Nest Industries at Fernie said it would begin construction of a $15,000,000, 68-mile railway to link up with the Great Northern main line in Montana for movement of another 400,000 tons of coal to other parts of North America.

In Victoria, Wednesday, Gene Clemmer, superintendent of industrial relations for Kaiser, met Mines Minister Donald Broderick and Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell to discuss details of the Fernie development.

The discussions with Mr. Broderick covered anti-pollution measures to be taken by the company at its new coal-handling facilities and future of the present Crows Nest underground mine, which employs 400 men.

to clean up the incredible mess in our mental health services. It is ludicrous, it is beyond belief, that there are 100 psychiatrists who are prevented from treating mental patients because they do not have access to hospital beds.

Dr. McGeer said if "sense, reality and enlightenment" are brought to bear on mental health problems in this province all mental health services will eventually be integrated with those in general hospitals.

End the absurd pursuit of separate and competing services," he said, "Give the mentally ill some hope... and a passport to the 20th century." He also accused the government of financing B.C. Hydro borrowing, estimated at $32,000,000 over the next five years, at the expense of municipalities, schools and hospitals.

"B.C. Hydro, which had a profit of less than $10,000,000 last year, has a balance sheet which simply will not support its ballooning debt structure," Dr. McGeer said.

"It is this borrowing which lurks behind every debate in this legislature. It is this borrowing which threatens every human need in this province, which competes for financial resources that would otherwise go into hospitals, schools, housing or municipal works."

Viet Cong Raids Change Nothing

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States is continuing diplomatic efforts to determine whether North Vietnam is interested in peace talks despite the widespread Viet Cong terrorist offensive in South Vietnam, the U.S. state department said Wednesday.

Department spokesman Robert McCloskey was asked what effect the raids, in violation of the Lunar New Year truce the Viet Cong themselves proclaimed, might have on the administration's peace talk explorations.

"I have no reason to think that anything has changed in U.S. government policy with respect to this question," he said. "I know of no change in U.S. government policy."

NO COMMENT

He refused to comment on questions whether the U.S. was planning any military retaliation for the raids on the U.S. embassy in Saigon and on other allied installations throughout South Vietnam.

The department's initial low-keyed reaction to the attacks led to some speculation that the U.S. was deliberately refraining from any public move that might inflame the international atmosphere. It was noted that debate diplomatic efforts to get North Korea to free the U.S.S. Pueblo and its crew are still under way.

CONG RAIDS

In assessing the political and diplomatic implications of the Viet Cong raids, U.S. officials have in hand captured enemy documents suggesting that the attacks are part of a broad Communist strategy to force peace negotiations on their own terms.

The raids, along with an anticipated North Vietnamese attack on the U.S. stronghold at Khe Sanh, just south of the demilitarized zone, appear to be a co-ordinated effort.

Its aim is to shatter confidence in the Saigon government and persuade Americans to talk.

A-Bomber Falls Without Bombs

LEICESTER, England (Reuters) — A Vulcan bomber of the British nuclear strike force crashed in a field near here, but an air force spokesman said it was not carrying nuclear weapons. The pilot and co-pilot parachuted to safety but the other four crew members were killed.

peace on terms that ultimately would lead to Communist domination of the South.

According to Hanoi directives seized in the field, Viet Cong guerrillas have been told that "it is imperative that we hit the enemy harder before engaging in any negotiations." By doing this, they said, the Communists will be in a position to force their way into a coalition government.

Complete Canal 'Needs Survey'

CAIRO (AP) — An Egyptian spokesman insisted Wednesday that the entire Suez Canal must be surveyed before 15 stranded foreign ships can be released. He said firing by Israeli troops made the task impossible.

Mohamed Hassan el Zayyat told a news conference the trapped vessels would remain blocked in the 107-mile canal until it can be determined if they should be released through Port Said at the canal's northern end or the Suez outlet in the south.

PORT SAID

He said the stranded American ship Observer wanted to leave through Port Said.

Israeli and Egyptian guns exchanged fire Tuesday after Egyptian boats tried to survey the northern half of the canal. Israel has agreed that the canal's southern end can be cleared of sunken vessels to free the 15 stranded ships, but says any clearing operations in the northern end violate a ceasefire agreement that neither Egyptian nor Israeli forces would use the canal.

EAST BANK

Israel, with troops stationed on the canal's east bank, has said it is willing to negotiate reopening of the Suez Canal to all shipping if Israeli vessels can use it. Egypt has refused to discuss such an agreement.

Israeli officials in Jerusalem said the Egyptians had no intention of clearing a way for the trapped ships and deliberately provoked Israeli fire by putting boats into the canal's northern end.

Apology, As in 1956 May Free Sailors

SEOUL (AP) — A North Korean leader hinted Wednesday that the crew of the Pueblo might be released under certain conditions. He said future developments in the Korean crisis depends on the United States.

The radio at Pyongyang, the capital of North Korea, said Kim Kwang Hyup, secretary of the Central Committee of the North Korean Workers (Communist) party, mentioned the capture of the intelligence ship at a reception for a Romanian Communist party delegation.

'DIFFERENT STORY'

"It is a miscalculation if the U.S. imperialists think that they can solve the incident of the intrusion of the Pueblo into the territorial waters of our country by military threats or by the method of aggressive war or through illegal discussion at the United Nations."

"It will be a different story if they want to solve this question by method of the previous practice. But they will get nothing if they persist in their present method."

Kim did not say what he meant by previous practice. But on the receipt of a U.S. apology two crew members of a U.S. Army helicopter shot down when it strayed over North Korea were released in May of 1956. This, however, was a year after their capture.

VIEW UNOFFICIAL

In Tokyo, an official of a pro-North Korean organization said he believed the crew will be released if the United States admits it violated territorial waters and promised not to repeat the incident.

The official, Park Hang-ki, deputy chief of the foreign affairs section of the Federation of Korean Residents in Japan, said his view was unofficial but he noted Pyongyang had demanded a U.S. apology. His federation maintains contacts with North Korea.

In Seoul, Foreign Minister Choi Kyu-huh indicated his South Korean government was displeased with the handling of the Korean crisis by the United States.

He said more attention should be paid to the North Korean attempt to assassinate President Park Chung Hee Jan. 21 then to the seizure of the U.S. intelligence ship Pueblo.

His government will object to any direct talks between the United States and North Korea on any proposal to exchange the Pueblo crew for North Korean infiltrators, he declared.

Lee Byung-do, deputy director of the Korean Central Intelligence Agency, declared that any retaliatory measures taken as a result of the two incidents should be strong.

Emphasizing he was not recommending such action, Lee told reporters that any U.S. retaliation must come in the form of heavy air strikes on all major North Korean cities.

It would not do just to attack only one city, he said, because "the moment North Korea is bombed by the United States they will invade the South."

Geneva Talks Proposed

U.S. Ponders UN Tactic

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) —

The United States said Wednesday night it hoped to give its answer today on an Afro-Asian mission to seek the release of the Pueblo and its 83-man crew through talks with North Korean representatives in Geneva.

U.S. Ambassador Arthur Goldberg told newsmen he expected to go to Washington today and also planned to be in touch with the president of the Security Council here.

Ambassador Agha Shahi of Pakistan, outgoing council president, said the five Afro-Asian members of the enforcement body proposed that they go to Geneva, under an informal mandate from the 15-nation group and with the approval of the United States, to talk with North Korean diplomats assigned there.

Shahi said the purpose of the Afro-Asian mission to Geneva would be first to hear the North Korean point of view and then negotiate the release of the ship and the crew as a prelude to an invitation to the Pyongyang government to send a delegation to discuss the entire Korean question in the Security Council.

Shahi said the idea of the five Afro-Asian countries had been communicated to both Goldberg and Soviet delegate, Platon Morozov. Resolution of both still was awaited.

Both Goldberg and Shahi expressed high interest in a broadcast by a member of the North Korean communist party's political committee implying that any U.S.-North Korean negotiations on the Pueblo incident would have to be at the Korean truce village of Panmunjom "by the method of previous practice."

"What we want is a solution through the United Nations or in any way," Goldberg said.

Daring Tactics

IT IS MUCH TOO EARLY to estimate in terms of life and property loss the cost to the United States forces in South Vietnam arising from the staggering North Vietnamese and Viet Cong offensive, much less the effect upon the morale and prestige of the embattled Americans and their allies.

But they must be reckoned severe on all counts. The initiative at this time remains with the communist forces and the offensive is far from finished. With all their vast superiority in weapons, as well as numerical strength in the areas currently under assault, the defenders of South Vietnam were unable to forestall the daring penetration by their enemies—a skilfully organized and efficiently executed infiltration on an enormous scale, throughout the Mekong Delta and the northern centres and into the capital, Saigon, itself.

This is the sort of warfare in which the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong excel and defence against such tactics is most difficult. It first of all requires the identification of the enemy. But how, when friend and enemy have the same features, the same complexions and the same garb?

Obviously the communist offensive was planned to take advantage of the Tet truce—a truce that never was—and designed to catch South Vietnamese and other defensive forces off balance. At the same time, a military build-up around the huge U.S. Marines' bastion of Khe Sanh in the north was in the nature of a feint, and drew large reinforcements there.

Now that guerrilla blows are being struck in virtually every South Vietnam centre and attention is satisfactorily distracted, it is expected Khe Sanh may be the next objective—the attackers seeking to make of it a symbolic success, on the pattern of the capture of the French-held fortress of Dienbienphu in 1954 which led to the surrender of the Indo-China territories.

There are two possibilities that suggest themselves to explain the fury of the present offensive—and either could well be linked to the distraction engineered by the seizing of the USS Pueblo. Hanoi may have attacked in desperation or defiance. And there is a third proposition for diplomatic consideration: Ho Chi Minh may be seeking a stronger bargaining position.

If he can maintain pressure in the South Vietnam heartland, he may feel Saigon and Washington would be more receptive to any terms for peace negotiations he might offer.

On the other hand this could be a grave miscalculation, and his present aggressiveness may be an invitation for the massive retaliation the southern allies still could mount against his own bases and the ground above the demilitarized zone. In the circumstances the risk of such an escalation might be warranted.

Third Rate?

BY EXAGGERATION, Opposition Leader Robert Strachan makes his case against government policies weaker. He opens a credibility gap.

As one instance, Mr. Strachan in the Throne Speech debate described the British Columbia education system from kindergarten to university as bordering on the third-rate and rapidly degenerating into chaos. Even the most avid advocates of improvement are not likely to see it in quite such a bad light. If our school system is nearly third-rate by the Opposition leader's judgment, the basis of his judgment must be questioned.

Probably the most usual comparison of educational progress in Canada is with the United States, and a measure often used is the proportion of secondary school graduates entering university.

In the United States, according to authoritative figures, one-half of all secondary school graduates entered a college or university in 1967. In super-affluent California where public junior and four-year colleges charge no tuition, three-quarters entered.

In British Columbia the estimate is that probably close to 60 per cent of secondary school graduates now enter a college or university; that nearly 100 per cent of those who graduate in the secondary-school university program go on to the beginning of higher learning. Not up to the mark of the Golden State, certainly, but does this sound like schools bordering on third-class, degenerating into chaos?

The B.C. school system could and ought to be made better. No one including the government would disagree. The question is where the money is to come from in sufficient amounts to advance the pace of improvement. This newspaper has long favored placing more of the load on the provincial treasury and less on local property-owners. But either way, the money comes chiefly out of British Columbians' pockets, in varying degrees of equity and painfulness.

Mr. Strachan suggests in this connection that the government has failed to obtain a fair share of resource development profits to apply to such expenditures as those for schools and hospitals. There is a point here at which the taxing of development can discourage the economic enterprise and growth necessary to support the expanding social services. Just as a higher general level of education is seen as conducive to a higher standard of living, greater prosperity provides the means of a better education for more people. This is a process that could be seriously afflicted by undue inhibition of either factor.

The British Columbia government is restraining school construction in a time of high borrowing costs, true enough. But that the system is degenerating into chaos is nonsense. When through physical growth as well as rising costs the Greater-Victoria school budget has climbed nearly 70 per cent in only four years—to use a handy and typical instance—it must be quite obvious to most citizens that education is anything but on the skids.

A Great Season

MR. McCLEAVE: . . . Sir, it should be a great season for television and radio. . . . We should have new programs this year. One will be "The Perils of Paul", an educational, light-hearted series on the constitution and, more particularly, one man's jousting with the doctrine of cabinet solidarity. Another program I can see coming up is "The Perils of the Other Paul", subtitled the story of a man who goes through life proving that what matters is not what a fellow has in his head but what is on his head, a case of dye and do. Then there would be "Mitch's Marauders", the story of a gang which takes money from rich and poor alike, leaving everybody poor . . .

"Some advance reservations here for a Hellyer, a Sharp, a Martin, a MacEachen, a Kierans, a Joe Greene, a John Turner, and what looks like a Pierre Trudeau . . ."

Ottawa Offbeat

Mitchell Sharp's Intense Discipline

By RICHARD JACKSON, Colonist Ottawa Bureau

THE smile, tight-lipped, was as thin and chill as mid-winter sunshine.

"Yes," said that gaunt, skeletal face—pale pinkish skin drawn drumhead-taut over steel trap jaw—"yes, especially France."

And that was as close as Finance Minister Mitchell Sharp allowed himself to go in betraying, very humanly, just the faintest glint of satisfaction that, of all the countries to feel the money-pluck of those restrictions the Americans are clamping on their investment abroad, France would be the hardest squeezed.

As you sat there at his press conference, trying to read the always interesting face of another of the men who want to be prime minister, you sensed that the thought of General de Gaulle suffering a little economic pain was giving Mitchell Sharp an inner satisfaction of considerable warmth.

It had to be an inward glow of quite some intensity to penetrate, as faintly as it did, in just the shadow of a smile, that icy exterior of rigid self-control.

And that perhaps gives you a clue as to the kind of Liberal leader and prime minister Mitchell Sharp would be.

For discipline—of himself and of those who work for him—is perhaps his most outstanding characteristic and essential qualification for leadership.

He has ability, of course, in generous measure.

But haven't almost all the leadership candidates their own particular capabilities—or why would they be aspiring to be prime minister?

What's particular in Mitchell Sharp's qualifications is that in intellect he probably is the best equipped of them all for understanding and being able to use the economic processes that shape national life and influence governments.

But he is special for something else—his total control of his feelings.

If Mitchell Sharp ever has lost his temper, it has never been in Parliament.

Nor has he ever let the watchful Commons detect any hint of great good feeling.

He is the nearest thing to the automated man the House ever has seen.

Which would make him immune alike to the taunts and tantrums of the Opposition, the differences and doubts of colleagues, the promises or threats of special pleaders and interest groups and to most of the other pressures applied so unrelentingly on any prime minister.

As prime minister, Mitchell Sharp would be boss, something Lester Pearson never has been, or perhaps any of the others since that old autocrat MacKenzie King.

Each of the candidates insists he is his own man.

But Mitchell Sharp is more than that—he is his own PRIVATE MAN. And so, as prime minister, he would be detached, but not remote, from the rest of the cabinet.

They wouldn't, familiarly, call him "Mitch"—for he's not Mike Pearson—nor even PM, but with respect for total authority, and perhaps with some fear, properly, Mr. Prime Minister.

As a self-made man who came from the wrong side of the Winnipeg tracks to reach the corporate executive suite, the bureaucratic power elite and finally the seats of the political might on Parliament Hill, he is intolerant of anything less than total effort.

A child of the depression on the Prairies, he saw the ballist strip the furniture from his jobless father's home.

From that kind of grinding poverty he made it, on his own, to the top.

And with that kind of a prime minister, a driver ruthlessly undriving of anything less than complete commitment to the job, a cabinet would have to perform—or else.

A cold fish?

Straight off the ice. But he does have a warm side—although not many get to see it, and when they do it's an event.

New Voice Needed

U.K. Businessmen Want a Coalition

By KENNETH HARRIS from London

THE idea of a coalition government for Britain was dismissed with scorn by the prime minister, Mr. Harold Wilson, addressing Labor MPs in private session on January 25.

The notion was first publicized in the august columns of The Times by Professor Max Beloff, professor of government at Oxford University, in the last few days of 1967. Historians and students of politics immediately pronounced it impracticable and undesirable. And the opposition Conservative Party has made it clear that a coalition is anathema to them, too.

"Exactly," an eminent and influential businessman said to me a few days ago. "Everybody is against it except the people. But sooner or later the people get what they want."

Whether that businessman is right or wrong about what "the people" will get, he seems to be right about what the people want. The need for the British to make a national effort along non-party lines is still felt. It has shown itself in the "I'm Backing Britain" campaign, begun by five girl typists who decided to work longer hours for no extra money.

How long the nation will go on feeling like this is problematical. It will depend on whether the Labor government and party close ranks successfully in the next few weeks, and whether in that period devaluation and the subsequent cuts in national expenditure seem to be bearing fruit. But of one thing there is no doubt in my mind. Among British businessmen and it happens that the people want. The need for the British to make a national effort along non-party lines is still felt. It has shown itself in the "I'm Backing Britain" campaign, begun by five girl typists who decided to work longer hours for no extra money.

The arguments for a coalition were summed up for me in a private conversation this week with the chairman of one of the best-known and currently most successful firms in Britain. "The fundamental trouble is," he said, "that our workers are suffering from exhortation ear-drum."

"So, incidentally, is our management, and as for my board, its affliction is acute. We do not, cannot, believe anything we are told any more. It just does not get through. The disease began to affect us when the Conservatives were in government. Under Labor it has become much worse. Unless there is a sense of a New—and different—Deal, nobody is going to listen to anybody any more."

"If a coalition government spoke, I believe the people might hear. Anyway, since it is the only real alternative to stumbling on as we are, I wish it could have a try. If we cannot have a coalition this year, the next best thing is a general election, won by the Conservatives. I fear that a year after that we should be no better off than we are now, but a change of government would produce a temporary improvement in the condition of our ear-drums."

"Personally, I would be prepared to let the 12 Liberals in the House of Commons run the country if that could be arranged—it would at any rate make a change. And change is necessary before the people can hear again."

What impressed me about this businessman's point of view is that it is far more realistic and politically far less disturbing than the views of certain other British businessmen who are virtually demanding the establishment of a corporate state.

Lord Robens, for instance, the chairman of the National Coal Board and a former member of the Labor Party leadership—he was Hugh Gaitskell's "shadow" foreign secretary at the time of the Suez Crisis—has said in public that the state should be run like a business corporation. He and other industrialists have picked holes in the parliamentary system, and have indicated that if they were allowed to run the government as they are allowed to run their business enterprises, all would be well. For them, a national coalition is necessary to eliminate the party warfare across the floor of the House of Commons and to facilitate the entry of businessmen into the cabinet.

Lord Robens seems to want a coalition in order to establish a different kind of government. But the industrialist I have quoted above wants a coalition only as a short-time measure, a symbolic force, to get the message through to the workers that something must be done urgently by us all to get Britain out of the bog at once.

I do not think that Mr. Harold Wilson, or the Opposition leader, Mr. Edward Heath, have much to fear from the industrialists who propose a coalition because it could enable the establishment of a different kind of government. But they may well have to listen in due course to the businessmen who say we must have a coalition to get a message through the deafened ear of the British people.

To quote my industrialist friend once more: "We are living in the economic equivalent of the 'phony war' of 1939-40, when it was hardly possible to believe that a war was on at all."

"Last year and the year before I should have given a whacking rise to the people who work for me, and they know it. I wanted to, and the government told me that I could not. Nor can I do it this year. Very likely not next. How can I expect my workers to go on beating their own records? How can I expect them to believe anything I say?"

"Something must happen to make them feel that there is a new chance, a change, a prospect of a breakout. And all I can see is what 1940 had to teach us—the need for a coalition, and a new voice, of reality and hope."

I Beg to Differ . . .

Old Fashioned But Right

By FRANK LOWE

THERE have been so many negative items in the newspapers about today's university students—sit-ins, riots, plain bad manners—that I wonder why so little attention has been paid to the stand taken by Jeff Chipman, until a few days ago president of the Students' Association of Sir George Williams University.

As I get the story, the Students' Association passed a motion to bar companies producing war materials from holding on-campus job interviews with students.

When the motion passed, by one vote, Chipman resigned as president. His stand was somewhat old-fashioned, certainly. But one I would like to commend.

He said he felt "that the student has the right to work for the company of his choice. Whether or not a company produces materials ultimately for use in Vietnam certainly does not affect the right of . . . the student to have an interview with the company of his choosing."

As I said, this business of admitting that people with whom one does not agree have rights is pretty old-fashioned.

Today's trend, the path being followed by the New Left and/or the Student Power advocates, is away from this democratic approach. Today it is minority rule, and heaven help the student who does not approve of some of the positions taken.

Personally I think a student has a right to be vehemently against the war in Vietnam. In fact, my sympathies are with him.

But I don't think this student has a right to make things tough for the student who doesn't see things in the same light—and who wants to work for a company which, incidentally, may produce some pro-

Washington Calling

The Reservist Call-Up Satisfied the Hawks

BY calling up the reservists out of a crisis area, the planes are provided at the normal charter rate without disrupting airline service. Of the four-engine jets in service on chartered airlines 329 are in the reserve fleet, along with other types of aircraft out of the total of 2,001, subject to emergency call. Despite recurring crises since the Korean war these emergency steps have never been taken.

But the Cuban missile crisis was of short duration. In the two weeks from the time the missiles were first positively identified it was resolved and the emergency call-up for men and planes was halted with the beginning of a return to normal.

That is the catch today. No one has the slightest idea how long the crisis precipitated by the seizure of the Pueblo will last or how it can be resolved. If it should mean a second front in Asia then the call-up of 15,000 air reservists would be only the smallest start toward putting the United States on a full war footing.

Nevertheless, with what amounts to virtually a full-scale war in Vietnam the manpower situation is far better than it was in 1950. This is thanks in no small part to the training programs initiated by retiring Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara. By bringing in skilled personnel at a fairly high level and through intensive training the types to man highly mechanized military are available.

Both the army and the navy have tried to persuade reservists to come back in recent months. The navy recently sent letters to lieutenant commanders rated as aviators appealing to them to return to active duty. Still other naval reservists with special skills have been imported to put on the uniforms again. Few have responded, most replying giving the reason that having only just established a civilian base and with a family to provide for they could not afford it. While the initial patriotic response submerges individual discontents, this will not be for long. The increasing unpopularity of the Korean war was one of Harry Truman's crosses in his last years in the White House.

'National' Theatre

From the Winnipeg Free Press

THE Stratford Festival company, which recently agreed to spend part of the year at the New National Arts Centre in Ottawa under the name Stratford National Theatre of Canada, has announced its first tour under the new dispensation.

The company will visit Montreal, Ottawa and Ann Arbor, Michigan, with a new production of Shakespeare's A Midsummer Night's Dream.

The tour has been made possible by a grant from the Canada Council.

All this will be most pleasant for the citizens of Montreal, Ottawa and Ann Arbor but the citizens of other towns and cities in Canada might be forgiven if they are unimpressed. If we must have a "national theatre," surely it could visit all the major towns and cities of the country rather than confining itself to a pair of Canadian communities and a rather obscure foreign town.

It is certain, however, that cities like Toronto, Winnipeg, Halifax, Edmonton, Calgary, Vancouver and Victoria will feel some effect of the current tour. All these cities have resident professional theatres and while the Stratford people are rehearsing and touring a considerable body of actors will be tied up.

The National Arts Centre in Ottawa was a questionable project to begin with; it appears to be even more so now.

Microfilmed Dossiers Smuggled Out

Purges Part of Life Under Greek Regime

From the London Sunday Times

Everyone has heard of Mikis Theodorakis or Helen Vlachou; their battles with the Greek military dictatorship are well publicized. But of the purges that have become an everyday part of Greek life comparatively little is heard, mainly because the victims are unknown, anonymous.

Now, however, a government document smuggled out of the country in microfilm provides striking evidence of political persecution in Greece — persecution which consists of quietly removing the livelihood of those whom the regime regards as suspect, without risking the publicity of jailing them.

In Her House

Here is the full transcript of one dossier:

CASE of NIKITAKIS: Euphrosyne Nikitakis, a teacher of English — consorted with dangerous Communists. In her house Communist friends of hers meet for "literary evenings." At the above meetings the only songs sung are those of Theodorakis, and the poems recited are those of Communist poets such as Kostas Varnalis and Vrettakos.

At the last meeting, which took place at her house some days ago, there was one Dimitrios Sourgas, a civil engineer and a personal friend of Andreas Papandreu (son of the ex-prime minister); also Popi Tzatzis, a Communist doctor very active in the trade unions, and Takis Kanakakis, a final-year medical student and a dangerous Communist.

This meeting occurred on the occasion of the appointment of Nikitakis as a teacher in Vittina. In reply to the congratulations which the rest of them made on her appointment, she said that the only thing that worried her was the fact that the appointment had been made by a Fascist government.

No More Jobs

Euphrosyne Nikitakis has now lost her job as a teacher; while the present regime in Greece survives, she has no hope of getting another.

The dossier on her — and on nine other "subversives" — is contained in a report drawn up by a committee of three civil servants in the ministry of education in Athens.

It was compiled last autumn, probably about September, and circulated to provincial inspectors of education as a guide to the sort of people they should purge from the schools in their areas.

At some stage, one copy of the report was microfilmed. The film has now reached the London Sunday Times.

The cover and first page of the ministry report were not photographed; they apparently carried docket and circulation numbers which would have told the Greek secret police, the Asphaleia, which copy of the report had been photographed.

The report is signed by three civil servants: N. Barkas, who appears to have chaired the committee, and Evangelos Moraitis and Constantinos Kourmas. These are thought by Greek experts in London to be members of the ministry's schools inspectorate section.

Passes Tests

The Sunday Times has taken expert opinion on the contents of the document, and knows in outline the route by which it reached London. On both counts it seems genuine.

Perhaps the most convincing thing, however, is a Kafkaesque quality of the dossiers themselves. They reveal the superb inconsequentiality of the secret police reports, the jumble of credible information with the ludicrous, the almost total absence of any proper questioning of data, the whole theory of "guilt by association" which in a police state supplies the excuse for imposing penalties.

Above all, the report lays bare the grubby apparatus of the secret police itself: Euphrosyne Nikitakis was betrayed by one of her friends; in another case school children were interrogated about their teachers; colleague gave away colleague.

Long, Rambling

The dossiers are mostly long and rambling. These are extracts from some to them, detailing the major allegations — all, of course, unproven — for which the people named have now been deprived of their jobs.

CASE of POUKOUNIAS: Ioannis Poukounias, a teacher of literature, born 1940 ... until January, 1963, considered a person of healthy social views, but during ... his military service ... mixed exclusively with shady privates. He had suspicious contacts with a former corporal of the ELAS (Communist-dominated wartime resistance).

And he spoke against the officer corps and the existing social system ... He had a photograph of King Constantine, then heir to the throne, on the back of which were written unseemly phrases ... 1964 appointed teacher at a girls' high school at Kalymnos ... Oct. 17, 1965, he suggested to those around him that they should not applaud the king and queen who were arriving at Kalymnos.

Made Speech

Oct. 23, 1965, he made a speech of anti-national content ... contact (who) approached Communist (who) approached an employee of the national electricity authority and, speaking to him, handed him printed matter of unknown content.

... On March 7, 1967, on the 19th anniversary of the incorporation of the Dodecanese, he spoke the panegyric of the day in the church at Kosas, at the end of which he shouted "Long live the Dodecanese; Long live the nation," but omitted to shout "Long live the king."

This was noted by the congregation, and another teacher shouted "Long live the king," to the satisfaction of the congregation ... Since he carries out propaganda of both commission and omission against the king and on behalf of communism, we ask you to enforce his permanent dismissal.

What emerges from the dossier is that the regime makes no distinction between past and present political activities; nor does it matter if, in previous investigations, the police were satisfied with the suspect's explanations. The next dossier is a good example of this.

CASE of PAPADIMITRIOU: Socrates Papadimitriou, a teacher of theology ... In 1962 information was given to the Asphaleia in Athens that he and his wife had contacts with people working in EDA (a left-wing party) ... he appeared before the police in February, 1963, and ... denied the accusations, except that he admitted that he had collected funds for the Communist party in Greece during the occupation.

Praised Heroes

In April, 1964, working in a girls' high school, he spoke in school hours to his pupils of Class 7, praising the achievements of ELAS and ... the heroes of the resistance ... he strayed from the subject and taught his pupils direct Communist instruction ... because he is a fellow-traveller, we suggest he is dismissed as quickly as possible.

But the most frightening dossier of all is also the shortest; a man persecuted simply because he is alleged to have read left-wing literature.

CASE of GOULAS: Demetrios Goulas, a teacher of physical education. It has been confirmed recently that he reads Communist publications and that he explains the views of these on educational matters to teaching colleagues ...

Total Unknown

Nobody knows how many teachers like these have been purged. Not all the names are announced in the government gazette in Athens; even when they are, no details are given.

But it is known that from July 1 to October 10 last year, 100 teachers lost their jobs. The reason given was usually "disloyalty."

They were just as anonymous, and presumably just as much or as little "guilty," as those whose dossiers are given here.

Gap Widening

War Denies Aid To Poor Nations

By HAROLD MORRISON, from London

A network of moral principles rather than hard bargains may be the outcome of the world's biggest trade conference which opens in New Delhi today.

The sound of gunfire may be far away but the impact of the Vietnam war will be felt at this second attempt by the United Nations Conference on Trade and Development to bridge the widening gap between the world's rich and poor.

Huge military budgets spent in the mud, swamps and jungles of Vietnam could help provide that extra cash and effort required to expand technical training, increase production and finance vital exports from developing countries to the richer nations.

But instead the developing countries are confronted with sharply-reduced United States aid and with indications that a number of other countries, including Britain, are forced to cut their assistance.

In former days, the big pitch in the U.S. was that aid had to be given to the small, developing countries or they would fall into the hands of the Communists. That argument has been weakened by the fact that many neutral countries are just as ready to get help from the Soviet Union as the Western countries.

The size of the present gathering — more than 130 countries — demonstrates the importance of the meeting. The last such meeting in 1964 didn't get very far. The mammoth nature of the conference may have been a deterrent. Too many problems by too many countries were converging.

But ideas have lingered and developed. One idea, initiated by Britain, is to expand the Commonwealth system of tariff preferences so that all the rich countries would give this margin on tariff advantage to the poorer exporters.

Not all the rich countries like this idea. It would not only destroy whatever remnants of the Commonwealth fabric that are maintained by the preferences but would undoubtedly hurt some domestic manufacturers.

Economies of many of the richer countries have become so wobbly as a result of increased competition and inflation that even the tariff bargaining resulting from the exhaustive Kennedy round conference may be in jeopardy.

But it would be embarrassing for the rich countries, particularly the U.S., if those who plead for help go home empty-handed. An expression of pious hope at this stage may be insufficient for those who hunger for a better life.

Depressing News Piles Up

By HARRY YOUNG
Business Editor

An accumulation of depressing annual reports for leading Canadian companies in 1967, coupled with record high interest rates and uncertainty about the U.S. economy, are held as prime factors for the decline in leading Canadian stocks, now in its second week.

The clear indications from the early reports are that the profit squeeze has been even more violent than feared, and most companies are declining to take an optimistic view of the near future.

Several companies, including MacMillan Bloedel, have cut their dividends in anticipation of lower earnings in the next few months.

REFLECTION NOTED

Fears of further costly wage demands in many industries are being reflected in investor confidence.

One of Canada's weak stocks at the moment is Trans Mountain Oil Pipeline, whose business is being threatened by the switching of its Puget Sound customers from Canadian crude oil to oil from the new Alaska offshore producers.

As Trans Mountain sells about two-thirds of its oil to the U.S., the switch to Alaskan crude presents Trans Mountain with a formidable problem of finding new markets.

BANK STOCK LISTED

Another step in the progress of the Bank of B.C. will be taken today when the $10 par shares of the bank, issued at $25, will be posted as listed stock on the Vancouver Stock Exchange. Since the shares were sold last summer, the bank shares have been trading over-the-counter, and the most recent quotation was 22 1/2 to 23. No listing of the bank shares is contemplated at the moment on other exchanges.

NEW IRISH LINK

The Toronto-Dominion Bank has forged a new link with Ireland by acquiring a 15-per cent interest in Allied Irish Investment Bank Ltd. of Dublin, a $500,000 capital bank specializing in industrial and commercial services.

Other major shareholders in Allied Irish Investments Bank are Hambro's Bank of London and the Irish Life Assurance Co. Canadian banking interest in Ireland has grown in recent years as a result of the operations of a number of Canadian mining companies on Irish properties.

DOMTAR EXPLAINS

Shareholders of Domtar Ltd. have been informed that the net income for 1967 has been adversely affected by $3,500,000 as a result of new accounting practices.

Preproduction expenses of the new pulp-chemical plant at Lebel-sur-Quevillon in Quebec have been charged against income in the year incurred instead of being amortized over a period of five years as was the case in 1966.

A revised comparison of the 1966 and 1967 figures showed that under the new accounting net profit for 1967 was $9,100,000 (60 cents) against $16,500,000 ($1.10) in 1966, while cash flow dipped to $2.16 a share from $3.33.

Sales remained fairly steady at $428,000,000 against $430,100,000 a year earlier, but T. N. Beaupre, president, said decline in income was due to reduced newspaper sales to the U.S., depressed pulp markets, operating losses at Quevillon and increased costs.

SALES UP, PROFITS DOWN

Canadian Industries Ltd. managed in 1967 to increase its consolidated sales by 7 per cent but its net earnings were down at $7,029,000 (70 cents) from $10,575,000 ($1.06) a year earlier.

Plant startup problems, strikes at 11 locations, and losses by Millhaven Fibres, a subsidiary, cut into profits.

EXPORTS IN DECLINE

A drop of 24 per cent in net profits and of 7 per cent in sales during 1967 is reported by Du Pont of Canada Ltd. The net income of $10,425,000 ($1.30) was down from $13,798,000 ($1.73) in 1966.

The company reports domestic sales for a number of products increased during the year but selling prices and exports were down substantially.

ALLOY FROM ORE

Falconbridge Nickel reports it is going ahead with the construction of an iron ore concentrator in the Sudbury area which will produce pellets containing 90 per cent iron and 1 1/2 per cent nickel. The concentrates will be fed directly into the steel making process to provide a special steel alloy with stainless qualities.

The plant will cost $35,000,000 and it is expected to go into production in 1969 with an annual capacity of 300,000 tons.

TAKEOVER PLANNED

CEMP Investments Ltd. and Cadillac Development Corp. have made an offer of $7 a share for the shares of Canadian Equity and Development Co. owned by Canadian Breweries and Windfields Farms Ltd.

A similar offer is expected to be made later to other shareholders of Canadian Equity. The present offer is for 3,773,000, or 80 per cent of Equity's capital.

CEMP Investments, owned by the Bronfman family, includes a downtown development in Vancouver.

Philippine Mine Activated

VANCOUVER (CP) — A Philippine copper mine in which a Vancouver company, Placer Development Ltd., holds a 40 per cent interest will be put into production at a cost of nearly $40,000,000. The company — the rest of which is owned by the Philippine government — is reported to have reserves of 100,000,000 tons of copper on Marinduque Island.

Hall Vow:

B.C. Bank Will Be National

VANCOUVER (CP) — The new president of the Bank of British Columbia said Tuesday the bank will become a national one with branches in several major cities across Canada.

Albert Earl Hall, 54, former vice-president with The Toronto-Dominion Bank, told a press conference he hoped to have branches operating in B.C. by the end of June.

Asked about possible influence of the provincial government in the bank, Hall said:

NO PROMISES — "I know nothing about the provincial government. All I know is that Premier Bennett thought that a major bank in B.C. would expand the financial community . . . but I have no promises from the government."

Mr. Hall said the first operating branch will be in the present premises in downtown Vancouver, but the head office would be at a location still to be secured. The next branch would be in Victoria.

He said he did not know when branch offices would be opened across the nation.

Is "The Pill" Really Safe?

A million Canadian women take "the pill" yet, there is still doubt about possible dangerous side effects! February Reader's Digest reveals there is still a possibility of "the pill" causing cancer . . . that its use could double the chances of blood clots . . . that it plays a role in emotional problems and weight gain! Why are some doctors asking patients to stop taking it? Be sure to read this authoritative article on why some women should be cautious about taking "the pill". communities for use as treatment centres.

A centre may be specially designed for such purposes, or it could be an old home, but "the primary purpose would be to make available, in regional areas, residential treatment facilities which could offer substitute home care . . ."

Mr. Black said he would like to see community groups take the initiative and "we would be very pleased to consider requests for assistance for such a purpose" from any local agency or other non-profit group.

OTTAWA RAPPEL

All that is holding B.C. back from integrating hospitals for the treatment of mental and physical diseases is the failure of the federal government to include mental health facilities under its hospital insurance programs, the minister added.

The minister said he would listen to valid criticism, but every year at this time mental health services came under attack — "the opposition's references to snake pits and things like that to capture the interest of the public."

'ONLY-THING'

He turned to Ray Parkinson, psychiatrist, and NDP MLA: "You don't want it (mental health services) to work. The only thing that has interested you for two years is getting elected in Vancouver Burrard." Opposition members shouted that it was a personal attack.

The minister pointed out that in the past year he had appointed a new deputy, a director of mental health services and a co-ordinator of mental retardation programs.

AT PRESENT

At present, the department is recruiting consultants in community and child psychiatry and a specialist who will study the epidemiology, or natural history, of mental disease.

"All this means that the mental health services branch will become more broadly based than it is now. From now on, it will be involved in all aspects of mental health through integration, co-operation and liaison," said Mr. Black.

under one rank structure based on army grades.

The RCN, a strongly traditional service and the source of stout opposition to the unification bill, gets some special treatment in the rank structure designed to make the switch to army grades more palatable.

The department has ruled that "traditional naval ranks will continue in use by all former RCN officers and men" — those enrolled in the service before today.

Effective today, future servicemen assigned to naval duties will get naval rank designations only if they perform "what clearly can be described as 'navy' jobs."

Like It or Not

So the captain on the bridge will still be called captain, not colonel, and the ordinary seaman won't be called private.

But, like it or not, they will be listed as colonel and private in all their documents and records.

A number of other designations in the private-to-corporal level are being retained where they are descriptive of the job done by the serviceman — such ranks as gunner, sapper and aircraftman.

Navy craft will retain their "HMCS" designation and the Esquimalt base will remain HMC Dockyard. HMCS Malahat, formerly called a naval reserve division, will henceforth be called a naval reserve unit.

Comox 'As Is'

But Canadian Services College Royal Roads today becomes Royal Roads Military College.

At CFB Comox, nothing was expected to change.

"We're strictly an air force operation and it's not going to affect us for some years," base commander Group Capt. K. C. Lett said Wednesday night.

His rank from this morning will be colonel.

High School Space Offered
For Vocational Training

By BILL STAVDAL

The capital region's three school districts will offer their high schools to the provincial government as emergency vocational training centres.

Today's
Speakers

Labor and Education Minister Leslie Peterson will be the first speaker when the throne speech debate resumes at 2 p.m. today. He will be followed by Leo Nimick (NDP, Kootenay), Cyril Sheldford (SC, Okanagan) and Fred Vallentyne (NDP, Burnaby-Willoughby). At the night sitting, speakers will be Herbert Bruch (SC, Esquimalt) and Dave Barrett (NDP, Coquitlam).

Hellyer
Here
Saturday

Executive members of local Liberal associations will hear Paul Hellyer speak Saturday at the Red Lion Inn. He is the first of the declared party leadership contenders to speak locally.

Paul Martin will be in Vancouver today and has issued invitations to Vancouver Island party members to meet him at the Hotel Vancouver. There are no plans for him to visit Victoria.

Trustee spokesmen for the Greater Victoria, Sooke and Saanich school boards made the decision Wednesday.

They met with district superintendents to plan expansion of the area's post-secondary vocational training facilities.

INTERIM HOUSING

The school board will offer the vocational training wings of eight senior high schools as interim housing until a regional vocational school is built.

They will ask an immediate meeting with deputy education minister Dr. Neil Perry and provincial vocational training officials.

A regional vocational school has been promised by the government. It will be built on Wilkinson Road, near Royal Oak.

NEARLY READY

Plans are now almost complete, reported Greater Victoria adult education director Jack Dalgleish, who conferred last week with government officials.

"They expect to have the school started before the end of 1968, provided the money is available," said Mr. Dalgleish.

Peter Dunn, chairman of the Greater Victoria School Board, remarked:

"It won't help anyone leaving school this year, and most likely the year after."

THREE-YEAR WAIT

He predicted a three-year wait for the school.

Earlier this month a survey of the three school districts showed 788 students who said they would take vocational training if it were available.

It was suggested at Wednesday's meeting that the new high school shops could be used after regular school hours for job training. Consultation with the department of education would show what courses could be taught, said trustees.

SAVE MILLIONS

John Bartanus, chairman of the Sooke School Board, made the suggestion to approach the department.

"A plan like this might save the province millions," he suggested.

Mr. Bunn added:

"The schools have got to be used more."

"We have proved a need for vocational training and we are offering the facilities to help fill the gap."

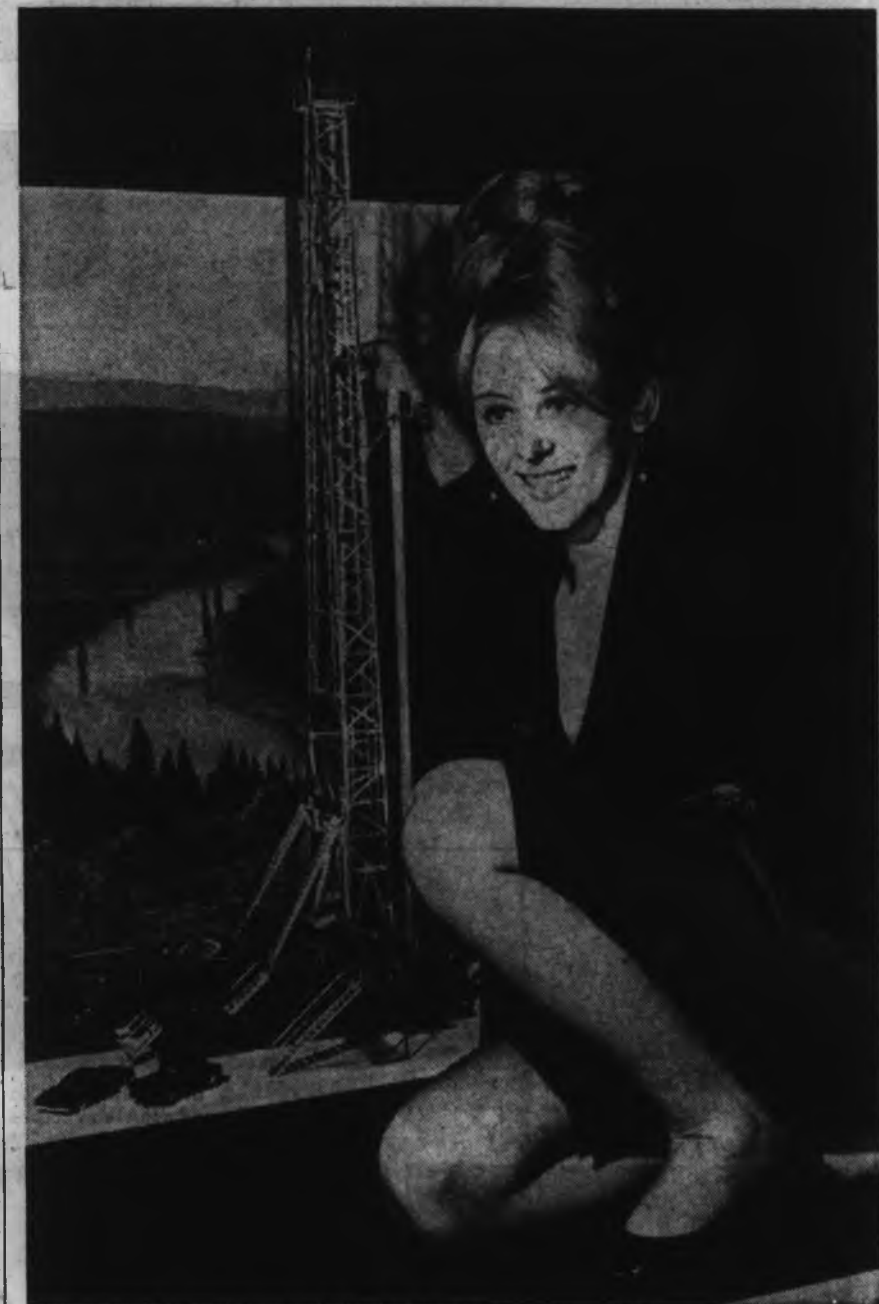

Inquest
Tonight

An inquest into the death of Arthur Cathers, 54, of 1123 Mason, will open at 7:30 p.m. today at McCall Brothers, 1400 Vancouver.

The body of Mr. Cathers was found Tuesday morning in a truckload of sawdust at Crofton. Mr. Cathers was missing Monday night at B.C. Forest Products mill at Peat Ellice, where he worked as a cleanup man.

Veteran Jet Finds Peace
At Royal Roads Display

An RCAF Sabre Mark V aircraft has made its last landing.

The jet is the air force contribution to the environment display being assembled at Royal Roads Military College.

Later this year, an army Sherman tank and a navy four-inch gun will complete the display in front of Hatley Castle.

The history of the jet aircraft dates back to 1956, when it was part of the 442 Air Defence Squadron at Sea Island, Vancouver.

The plane was transferred in 1956 to Chatham, N.B., where it was employed as an interceptor as part of the North American defence system.

After 2,000 flying hours, the jet could no longer meet safety requirements, an official said, and was scheduled for write-off.

Instead of normal disposal, it was stripped of all fittings and equipment and shipped to Royal Roads for display.

It was lowered onto a 15-foot concrete pedestal last Wednesday.

Hospital's Bid Withdrawn

The Cedars private hospital is no longer asking Victoria to pay more for the accommodation of welfare patients, but Glenagarry and Glenwarren are still pressing their claims for higher fees.

In a letter received Wednesday at City Hall, Cedars administrator Mrs. L. deMacedo withdrew a request for additional social assistance benefits.

She refused to give any reason for the change of attitude.

William O'Connell, administrator of Glenagarry and Glenwarren private hospitals, said they were continuing to press for payments of bills submitted to the city in excess of the $230 monthly payment for each patient.

The issue arose last December when the two hospitals asked the city to increase their payments, or to seek other accommodation for the welfare patients.

Later, Welfare Minister Dan Campbell said the allowance would be increased by $15 a month, which was still $30 short of the hospital rates.

The hospitals said they would bill the city for $12,000, the difference between what the city paid and hospital charges over the preceding six months.

"It's a pity that these patients should be used like pawns in a chess game in the wrangling over this matter," said Mr. O'Connell.

"It's not their fault that they don't have the money to pay for their own care. There are many reasons for running out of money, and it doesn't take long to run through savings if a person needs private hospital care."

HIGHER RATES

Three hospitals — two in Victoria and one in Vancouver — which were once private hospitals have been taken over as non-profit concerns.

"These hospitals, which don't make any profits, are now receiving higher rates than we are, and they don't have to pay taxes as we do," said Mr. O'Connell.

There are higher rates, he said, at both Mount St. Mary and St. Mary Priory. Some allowance is included for different nursing services given some patients.

Police Threaten Action
If Pictures Published

Saanich police Wednesday threatened obscenity action if the University of Victoria's student Martlet Magazine publishes photographs which it has so far been unable to get past its own printers.

The pictures were to have been printed Monday night but the magazine's publisher, Acme Buckle Printers, reportedly refused to reproduce them.

The magazine, a supplement of the student newspaper, The Martlet, contained pictures printed more than 2½ years ago in an avant-garde U.S. magazine, the Evergreen Review.

They are photographs of welded sculpture representing couples in various sexual poses, Saanich Det.-Sgt. Robin Stewart said Wednesday he had a meeting earlier in the day with municipal prosecutor John McIntyre and Robert Watt, publications director of the student Alma Mater Society.

He said he handed Mr. Watt a letter which read:

"We have perused the photographic materials which you tell me was to have been in the above edition of the Martlet Magazine, and it is our opinion that publication of this material will be subject to prosecution."

Det.-Sgt. Stewart refused further comment.

The decision was made by Art Mauger, manager of Acme Buckle, said Mr. Watt.

The pictures are accompanied by an article written by Professor Richard Grooms of the university's division of art and history.

He termed the pictures "beautiful photos of beautiful sculpture."

Obsolete Laws Imperil Society's Base

By A. H. MURPHY

Mayor Hugh Stephen said Wednesday that the law forbidding the sale of contraceptives was "stupid and obsolete" and one of several which brought all enforcement into contempt.

The fabric of freedom under the law is all that stands between society and utter chaos, and laws which by common consent are almost universally ignored weaken the whole structure, the mayor told members of the Victoria Canadian Club.

Another such law, he added, was that which forbade the sale of sweepstake tickets.

"In these days of civil liberty and action leagues, the job of law enforcement is becoming extremely complex, and there is a tendency to forget that such liberty is predicated upon observance.

"This observance must be enforced, whether the laws themselves are good or bad, and must be continued until the laws are changed by legislative process," Mayor Stephen said.

Ranging far afield in his discussion of This Job of Mayor, the chief magistrate told club members that municipal government was facing an enormous challenge.

If it was to remain realistic enough to cope in the next 25 years, he said, it would have to develop swifter and more efficient decision-making machinery.

Adoption of the city manager system was one method of meeting the challenge, but even so it was not always easy for city council to recognize where policy began and ended. A matter involving $100,000 might represent a routine administrative decision, and one concerning a few cents a major change in policy.

One of the major facets of his job, the mayor felt, was that of establishing priorities.

And it was not easy. How, he asked, would one rate such issues as the shortage of hospital beds, the needs for a sewage disposal system, traffic congestion, housing and juvenile delinquency?

Improved relationships between Victoria and adjacent municipalities were a source of satisfaction, the mayor said. For many years, he said, conflict had been both profitless and stultifying. Now there was a recognition that problems did not stop at boundaries.

This, coupled with the development of the regional concept, had practically removed parochialism, he said.

They are photographs of welded sculpture representing couples in various sexual poses, Saanich Det.-Sgt. Robin Stewart said Wednesday he had

City's Problems Get Expert Eye

Victoria's economic problems will be considered at a day-long conference at the University of Victoria Feb. 27.

Ald. Ian Stewart who has promoted the panel discussion said Wednesday that a team of experts would be headed by Dr. Malcolm Taylor, university president, as over-all chairman.

Other members of the panel will be A. H. Roberts, director of the Capital Region Planning Board; Geoffrey Greenhalgh, community planning director for Victoria; Dr. Gordon Bertman of the economics department at the University of Victoria; Larry Ryan, secretary-treasurer of the Victoria Labor Council; William Armstrong, president of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce, and Mayor Hugh Stephen.

POSSIBLE SOLUTIONS

Each speaker will have 20 minutes in which to outline his thoughts on problems facing labor, management and municipal, and to suggest possible solutions for the future.

Following the addresses the forum will be opened to questions from the floor.

Idea for the panel was born of an all-candidates meeting held at the Victoria Labor Centre before the municipal election in December. Ald. Stewart, one of the speakers at that meeting, said that if re-elected he would work on the idea of getting qualified people together to discuss the city's future.

REEVES INVITED

Reeve Curtis, Reeve Bryant of Esquimalt and Reeve Hawes of Oak Bay will be invited to attend, along with two additional representatives from labor and management and one more from the university.

There will also be 16 observers divided between civic labor and management groups. The meeting will be restricted to those invited.

Tax on Overseas Travel 'Violation' of U.S. Rights

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Johnson plans to ask Congress for a broad range of proposals to trim spending by U.S. tourists abroad, including a possible tax on travellers who spend more than $10 a day, informed sources said Wednesday.

The administration proposals probably will be presented to the House ways and means committee Monday by Treasury Secretary Fowler as a followup to the president's Jan. 1 call for the need to reduce the U.S. balance of payments deficit.

Some of the proposals being considered:

- A levy on tourists abroad who spend more than a set amount each day. The figure considered most likely is $10 a day, but it could be changed. Neither the sum nor the means of enforcement have been agreed on.
- Extension to overseas flights of the present 5 per cent tax on domestic airline tickets.
- Reduction of dollar ceiling on the value of merchandise that Americans can bring home duty free. The present limit is $100. In addition, the provision permitting tourists to mail home up to $10 worth of gifts without paying duty probably would be eliminated for all but U.S. servicemen.

• A possible ceiling on spending by tourists overseas. The administration hopes its final recommendations will be adopted before the peak tourist season begins in the spring.

AT BIG SPENDERS

The proposals appear aimed mostly at free-spending travellers rather than at such more frugal tourists as students and teachers.

Any such tax proposals would be temporary, the sources indicated, and would coincide with the president's appeal for Americans to hold down their overseas trips for the next two years.

The National Association of Travel Organizations, meanwhile, charged that imposition of travel restrictions would lead to retaliatory restrictions by other nations. It also said restrictions would violate Americans' "inalienable right" to travel.

Officials acknowledged that enforcement of the per-day spending limit would be difficult. Consideration is being given to requiring travelers to report their spending to customs officials as they leave a foreign country. But officials also are studying the possibility of having Americans report their overseas spending when they file their annual income taxes.

Fiery Astronaut Death Aided Apollo Project

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Two considered of paramount importance . . . even at the expense of target dates.

Using stronger language, Brooke and Percy complained never have been disclosed if it had not been for the spacecraft fire that killed three astronauts a year ago.

The charge by Edward Brooke (R-Mass.) and Charles Percy (R-Ill.) accompanied a full committee report which said that "overconfidence and complacency" stemming from a long series of successes contributed to the tragedy at Cape Kennedy.

The committee said the fire might have delayed the 1968 target date for a manned lunar flight, but that "safety must be

Project Successful Last of Orbiters Crashes on Moon

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. Space Agency ended its successful Lunar Orbiter project with a bang Wednesday when it sent the fifth and last of the $60-pound spacecraft crashing to destruction on the front side of the moon.

The five-shot Orbiter series, which began with a launch from Cape Kennedy Aug. 10, 1966, has returned photographs which have enabled scientists to chart 99 per cent of the moon's surface, front and back, and to pick eight sites suitable for Apollo astronaut landings later in this decade.

The last of the Orbiters, No. 5, had been circling the moon since Aug. 5, 1967. It became necessary to destroy it because it was running out of the rocket gas which enabled ground controllers to direct its aiming.

To make Orbiter 5 crash onto the moon, engineers sent a signal firing a spacecraft rocket. This caused the craft to fall out of lunar orbit and crash.

Bigger, Better Bangs Soon

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. Atomic Energy Commission announced Wednesday it is making a major effort to design, produce and test complex new nuclear missile warheads needed for national defence.

The AEC said in its annual report to Congress that it has been modernizing and expanding plants to produce the new warheads and that it is developing the ability to test larger weapons underground.

The nuclear test ban treaty of 1963 permits only underground testing and the commission said it is moving its present underground test sites in Nevada to another area in the central part of the state and to remote Amchitka Island in Alaska. President Johnson said in his budget message Monday that AEC spending would go up $213,000,000 in fiscal 1969, largely because of the new weapons development program.

The department has requested development of the warheads for:

● The $5,000,000,000 Sentinel anti-missile defence system being built in case of nuclear attack by China.

● Replacement of the Polaris missiles, launched from submarines, with more powerful, long range Poseidon missile.

● The advanced, land-launched Minuteman 3 missile, intended to do a better job of penetrating enemy defences.

The AEC's report made it clear that new underground testing techniques have been developed which can impart most of the information needed to produce warheads used in the atmosphere or outer space. The new techniques and test sites will make it possible to trigger underground explosions equal to at least a million tons (one megaton) of TNT — 50 times more powerful than the A-bombs dropped in the Second World War.

Carefree Country Born

NAURU (Reuters) — The phosphate-rich Pacific island of Nauru, eight square miles in area with 3,100 citizens, Wednesday became the world's newest and smallest island republic.

Baby pigs cavorted near the official dais as Australia, the trustee power, relinquished a United Nations mandate shared with Britain and New Zealand, and turned over sovereignty to Chief Hammer Derobert, chairman of a new council of state.

Diminutive Nauru, 30 miles south of the equator and 2,250 miles northwest of Sydney, has no immediate monetary problems. The phosphate deposits ensure its people an annual per capita income of more than $3,500.

Portland Keeps Slim Lead On Late Goal by Art Jones

Portland's two-point margin atop the Western Hockey League standings was maintained by a late goal by Art Jones in the eighth period of Wednesday's game against Phoenix.

Portland's lead was slim, but it was enough to keep them in first place. The team's record is now 10-10-2, while Phoenix is 9-11-2.

AT THE 19th With Harry Young

The new putting green regulations appear to be the most contentious of the revised rules of golf which went into effect on Jan. 1, and they are likely to create quite a few arguments until they become fully understood.

The first essential is that the ball may be lifted "for cleaning" only once on each green, and the cleaning must be performed before the first putt is made.

Secondly, in stroke play only, the player whose turn it is to putt first is required to putt out continuously unless in so doing he would tramp on the line or otherwise affect the putt of another player in his group.

In match play, the order of putting remains unchanged. The ball further from the hole has the right to play first, unless the owner of that ball declares otherwise.

Simple enough? Yes, but there are some shades of observation. First of all the rule is not being observed by the four professionals, which means that televised golf will mainly be played under "unofficial" rules.

Secondly, the new ball-cleaning rule does not prevent a player who is asked to mark his ball by an opponent after having made an initial putt, from doing a second cleaning job. This has been confirmed by Joe Dye, the U.S. golf association executive director and authority on rules.

This applies in match play as well as in stroke play, for in the former the person about to putt has control of the other ball and may ask for it to be marked or lifted as he desires. It is clearly not going to be to the advantage of the player to ask for an opponent's ball to be marked if it has a lump of mud on it.

The stroke play situation, which calls for continuous putting and thus apparently obviates any possibility of a "second cleaning," does not hold good all the way either because a fellow competitor may ask a ball (previously cleaned) to be marked (and thus given a second rub) if the fellow competitor had to stand in the line of putting.

That makes it clear that players could create awkward situations which would hurt the good fellowship usually associated with the game of golf.

On these grounds, the new rule must be regarded with some misgivings and it is to be hoped that the sportsmanship of the individual will prevail over possible "rights" allowed by the altered rule.

I am writing in this strain because I have just returned from a vacation in the Hawaiian Islands, where I came across a number of problems arising out of the new rule.

The main difficulty appears to be that most players nowadays try to combine match and stroke play in their normal friendly rounds. They are encouraged to do this because while they are playing in matches they are also required to enter their scores for handicap purposes.

The result is that one of the basic rules of golf, that match and medal play cannot be mixed, is being regularly flouted until it is difficult to differentiate one from the other. The exceptions come when players are faced with official competitions. Then many of them are "lost."

The new president of the B.C. Golf Association is C. M. Holland of the Gorge Vale Golf Club.

He was elected at a meeting of the new executive committee after the association's annual general meeting in Vancouver. He succeeds Doug Bajus, who has just completed a two-year term.

The new provincial president has been a member of the Board for a number of years, and last year he was chairman of the Course Rating Committee. He is also a former Gorge Vale captain.

The last Victorian to hold the post of president of the B.C. Golf Association was also a Gorge Vale member, John Carlow.

Annual general meeting of the Royal Canadian Golf Association will be held at Winnipeg on Feb. 9. It is the first time the meeting has been held outside the cities of Toronto and Montreal.

Jack Swanson, one of the Manitoba representatives and first vice-president, will be installed to office as new national president in succession to Phil Farley of Toronto.

After being president of Gorge Vale for the past two years Lt. Col. Moke Morgan is retiring. He is not standing for re-election at the club's annual general meeting Feb. 12.

Hugh Reid, vice-president, is expected to succeed him.

With Gorge Vale still snowbound in parts, the first round of the spring district medal has been postponed for the third time. This week, however, the district open and junior buttons matches will be resumed at the Victoria Golf Club.

Norm Boden and Gordon Whelan of the Cowichan club, who recently upset John Morgan and Laurie Kerr of Colwood, will be defending against Harold Jacobson and Jim Norbury from Glen Meadows.

Bengals' Choice In Prison

CINCINNATI (AP) — Paul Brown, coach and general manager of Cincinnati Bengals of the American Football League, knew Joe Phillips was a pro football draft of college players.

Phillips was a fourth-round choice of the Bengals Tuesday. A spokesman for Brown said Phillips, a former defensive halfback for Michigan State, is serving a 15 months to 14 years term on a charge of cheque forgery.

Al Heim, publicity director for the Bengals, said: "Paul knew about it but he knew Phillips was a good football player, and felt he had just made a mistake." Phillips was sentenced last November.

After a scoreless second period Len Rosen fired the winning goal at 4:49 of the third and Perkins and Ed Elsenwerth got last two corners.

Canada's only goal, in the 12th minute of play, was scored by Garry Dinesen.

Organizer Brian Pearce, Jim McCann and Craig Mearns believe that the tournament is the first of its kind to be held in Victoria.

Competing in the meet will be the Victoria "A" and "B" teams, and two teams from Vancouver, Liffeguards and Vancouver Water Polo Club.

The game of water polo has had little prominence in North America and has been dominated by European teams in such competitions as the Olympic Games.

Partly through television exposure and partly through the inclusion of water polo into the program of swim clubs, the sport appears to be on the rise throughout Canada.

Three young Victoria men feel that this strenuous sport has spectator appeal and have organized the first annual Victoria Invitational water polo tournament which will be held at the Crystal Garden this Friday and Saturday from 8 to 9 p.m.

Hulls, Dryden Sparkle Hawks in Second Place

Chicago's Hull brothers Wednesday night led the Black Hawks within one point of the leading Montreal Canadiens in the Eastern Division of the National Hockey League with a three-goal performance which brought a 3-2 win over New York Rangers.

Dennis Hull, who can shoot a puck almost as hard as his older brother, whizzed two 45-foot slap shots past Don Simmons to give the Hawks 1-0 and 3-1 leads and Bobby fired in a 25-footer on a power play which broke a 1-1 deadlock in the second period.

Outshot, 41-26, but getting excellent goalkeeping from Dave Dryden, the Hawks were never behind as they broke a three-way tie for second place and prevented Rangers from making it a four-way deadlock in the runner-up spot.

After Dennis Hull had driven a rising shot past Simmons in the first period, Don Marshall brought the Rangers even in the first minute of the second period by backhanding a rebound into an open net.

A penalty to New York defenseman Arnie Brown for hooking enabled the Hawks to regain their lead seven minutes later, Bobby Hull taking a pass from Stan Mikita and rifling an angle shot past Simmons.

It was his 35th goal of the season but Mikita's pass kept the elder Hull two points behind in the individual scoring race. Mikita now has 35 points, 27 of them goals.

Phil Goyette brought Rangers back into contention in the third period, scoring only 41 seconds after Dennis Hull's second goal, but Dryden balked them in the last half of the period.

Goals came easily in last night's two other games, both involving expansion clubs.

The climbing St. Louis Hawks moved into a third-place tie with Los Angeles Kings in the Western Division by clobbering Pittsburgh Penguins, 9-4, on St. Louis ice and Minnesota North Stars, also on the move, got within one point of the leading Philadelphia Flyers by running over the Kings, 6-1, in Minneapolis.

Unbeaten in their last seven games, Blues had no trouble scoring their fourth victory in their best streak of the season although they were no better than 2-2 after the first period.

THICK AND FAST Frank St. Marselle and Red Berenson scored before the second period was three minutes old and Bill McCreary scored the first of his two goals in the ninth minute to open a 5-2 lead which was never threatened.

Paul Andrea brought Penguins within two goals midway through the period but the Blues stuck back through Gary Sabourin and Don McKenney before the period ended and took an 8-3 lead early in the third period on rookie Tim Eccleson's second goal of the game.

It was quite an evening for the 7,768 St. Louis fans. Not only did their team set a record for goals scored in one game but they saw rugged action which produced 54 minutes in penalties and a penalty-shot goal, scored by Konik after Barclay Pledger had been whistled down for an infraction. The only good thing that happened to the slowly-slipping Kings last night was scoring a goal against Cesare Maniago.

The Minnesota goalkeeper had shut them out in three successive games and had a scoreless streak of 223 minutes and two seconds going against them when Howie Hughes finally beat him at 12:35 of the second period.

Hughes' goal made the score 4-1 and the North Stars had no trouble in registering their fourth successive win, which gave them a 4-1 edge over the California club.

Ray Cullen, who leads Minnesota with 21 goals, made two of their first three scoring shots with Wayne Connolly sandwiching his 19th goal.

Defenceman Mike McMahon scored his 10th goal before Hughes' map shot beat Maniago. Jean-Paul Parise, in the late seconds of the second period, and Bill Goldworthy, in the 14th minute of the third period, then turned it into a rout.

'Old Guys' Take Lead In Bob Hope Classic

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — The old guys and Bill Collins, who couldn't remember when he led a tournament race since then.

Collins, 39, playing out of Purchase, N.Y., shot 34-37 and Rosburg had 33-34-67 as both played the Indian Wells Country Club.

Among golfers breaking par was George Knudson of Toronto with a 35-35-70. He was grouped with 12 other players in 12th place.

Four corners in play—Indian Wells, Bermuda Dunes, Elorado and La Quinta—each has par 36-36-72 and measure from 6-71 yards to 6,910.

The day was perfect as the 134 pros and their army of amateur partners swung away in the first 18 of the 90-hole tournament.

TAKE BACK SEAT The stars of the show took a back seat, at least for the time being.

Billy Casper, winner of the Los Angeles Open last Sunday, played La Quinta in 33-37-70, and Arnold Palmer had 37-35-72 at the start of the day.

Asked which of the four was the toughest, Palmer cracked, "They're all tough the way I'm striking the ball."

Tom Nieporte, at 38 seeking a second successive triumph in the Hope, shot 38-38-76. The pro from Locust Valley, N.Y., said he played well with the tee but his iron shots were not so good.

But Nieporte reminded golf writers that a year ago he led off with the same 76 and proceeded to win with a total of 349.

FOLLOW ONE BACK One stroke behind Rosburg and Collins was Lee Trevino, the 26-year-old Rookie of the Year in 1968, from Fort Worth, Tex. Trevino, also at Indian Wells, carded 35-33-68.

The 69 bracket was crowded. The group included a couple of other old timers, Ed Furgol and Paul Harney.

Julius Boros, returning to the tour for the first time, shot 34-37-71 at La Quinta, while Doug Sanders scored to 34-43-77.

Today the pros switch to another course and change amateur partners. The switching continues through the Pro-Am phase Saturday. The pros play alone in the final 18 holes Sunday.

Some may not have to take it. The IOC, troubled by the problem for years, decided to introduce the sex test for the first time in the Olympics in Grenoble to stop gossip.

Avery Brundage, president of the IOC, said it had been hoped that the decision to have sex tests would discourage doubtful athletes from being entered by their countries.

This has happened in part and at least a couple of competitors entered for skiing have withdrawn.

A IOC official said the results of the tests would be made known only to the doctor of the team involved.

Each girl is required to "lick the paper," the official said. "Then the paper is sent to a laboratory and the result will be known 36 hours later."

The IOC official said that all girl athletes should be tested but limited facilities for the tests could mean that some may not have to take it.

Object of the exercise: to decide whether they are girls or men.

An official of the International Olympic Committee said the sex of athletes would be determined by saliva tests.

Football May Rob U.S. Olympic Team

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP)—Miami Dolphins of the American Football League may have drafted Jimmy Hines, who shares two world sprint records, right out of the Mexico City Olympics.

"I'm too flat broke to pass this up and may sign for enough money to stay in school" at Texas Southern in Houston, Jimmy said after the Dolphins picked him as their sixth-round choice Wednesday in the pro football draft. He was one of the United States' bright hopes for the Olympics.

"I really regret having to pass up the Olympics, but it's the only way I can stay in school and support my wife and baby. It's what I'll have to do."

Hines has done 9.1 in the 100-yard dash and 18 flat for 100 metres.

Pros Complete College Draft

NEW YORK (AP)—Quarterbacks Kim Hammond of Florida State and Dewey Warren of Tennessee, sprinter Jim Hines of Texas Southern and All-American defensive halfback Tom Schoen of Notre Dame were among the top collegians picked in the closing day of the combined American and National Football League drafts.

Although most of the cream had been skimmed off the top Tuesday when the 26 pro clubs completed five rounds of selections, some still remained for the later rounds.

400 SELECTED

The teams were selecting a total of 462 players, including extra picks for Cincinnati Bengals, the new AFL team, during the 17 rounds.

Hammond, who threw 15 touchdown passes for Florida State, went to Miami Dolphins of the AFL in the sixth round. Warren, out of action because of injuries during much of the Tennessee season, was a sixth-round pick of Cincinnati who had acquired quarterback John Stofa from Miami in a recent deal.

MIAMI PICKS SPEEDSTER

The Miami club also grabbed Hines, the sprinter whose 9.1 seconds for 100 yards tied the world record last year. Hines is a flanker back with Texas Southern.

Schoen was an eighth-round pick by Cleveland Browns of the NFL.

Minnesota Vikings, who had selected offensive tackle Ron Yary of Southern California Tuesday as the No. 1 pick of all the collegians, came up with Bob Goodridge, Vanderbilt flanker, and Len Snow, highly-regarded Georgia Tech running back.

Goodridge, who led the major college receivers with 79 catches for 1,114 yards, was taken in the sixth round and Snow in the seventh.

Bowmen Name Winners

A 208-average brought Mike Connorton the Archer of the Month Trophy in the January competition of the Metabolism Bowmen.

Ken Rainey won the men's instinctive shoot with 216, beating out Randy Miller (190) and Mike Watkins (187).

Other winners were Elsie Bryan in the ladies' freestyle with 207 and Connorton in the men's freestyle with 225. Roy Miller (200) and Dorothy Wood (192) finished second and third in the ladies' freestyle and Doug Wood (215) and Erwin Wiedemayer (216) finished closest to Connorton.

France Coins New Medals For Winners

GRENOBLE, France (AP)—Athletes who place first, second or third in the 1968 Winter Olympic Games here will receive medals on which their sports will be engraved.

The Games begin Feb. 6. In the past, all gold, silver and bronze medals came from similar molds and a winner of the bobbed event received the same medal as a champion skier.

The new medals have the official inscription of the Games on one side and individual engravings on the other to cover the seven sports involved in the competition—alpine skiing, luge, bobsled, hockey, figure skating, speed skating and nordic skiing.

Nancy's Status Questioned

TORONTO (CP)—The Canadian Amateur Ski Association has dismissed reports questioning the amateur status of Canada's world champion skier, Nancy Greene of Rossland, B.C.

Owen Carter of Toronto, association treasurer, said Wednesday night Nancy is eligible for the 1968 Winter Olympics at Grenoble, France, because she rejected a $5,000 scholarship disputed by an official of the International Olympic Committee.

"It's well known and documented that she turned down the scholarship because it was based on her athletic ability and not on her scholastic ability."

VERIFICATION ASKED

Carter was commenting on statements earlier Wednesday by Col. John Westerhoff, secretary-general of the IOC, who said the national Olympic committees of Canada, France and Austria were asked to verify declarations of amateurism from some of their members.

In Canada's case, it was Nancy and Westerhoff said his inquiry concerned a $5,000 scholarship she received solely because of her sport achievements.

ALSO IN DISPUTE

Westerhoff told a French sports newspaper that the status of French skiers Jean-Claude Killy and Marielle Goitschel, Austria's figure-skating champion Emmerich Danzer and the U.S. swimming team were also in dispute.

Carter said after Nancy's triumph in the World Cup competition last year, residents of Rossland offered her the $5,000 scholarship.

A student at Notre Dame University at Nelson, B.C., Nancy wrote to the IOC to inquire how the scholarship would affect her standing, said Carter.

"She made specific inquiries and then turned down the scholarship."

Westerhoff said he raised questions about the Canadian skier in a confidential report to the IOC last Dec. 16. He said the scholarship would violate Olympic rules, but admitted the Canadian Olympic committee later advised him that Nancy had returned the scholarship.

The dispute over Killy's status revolves around a sports car advertisement in which the skier was featured. Westerhoff also claimed Miss Goitschel was on the payroll of a ski factory.

In the case of Danzer, Westerhoff said he heard a television interview in which the skier indicated he benefited from training longer than the four weeks which Olympic rules permit at a special training camp.

Westerhoff indicated he was not satisfied with the replies he received from the European athletes.

THREATENS TO QUIT

"I will not be secretary-general at the next Olympic Games if national committees are going to pull my leg in such an open way in respect to amateur rules," he said in an interview in Grenoble.

"I only want to warn people that we want the rules respected. I have nothing against professionals, we just don't want them in the Olympic Games."

Oak Bay needed a strong rally late in the game to beat Equinix, 29-22, Wednesday and remain undefeated through six games in the Inter-High School girls' basketball league.

Claremont and Victoria continued their determined pursuit of first-place Oak Bay, Claremont trouncing Mt. Douglas, 54-30, at Claremont and Victoria Tigers scored a 43-9 victory over visiting Mount View.

REGULARS AWAY

Behind 14-12 at half-time, Oak Bay finally wore down the strong Equinix team-to-man defense. Jacquie Farris led the Bays with 15 points and Wendy Humphries scored 11 for Equinix.

Although Claremont played without two regulars, Jeannette McHattie and Lee Atkinson, it was able to hold Mt. Douglas scoreless through almost half a game.

Shortage of Psychologists Acute in Federal Prisons

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal penitentiaries service has reported an "acute" shortage of psychologists in its system.

The annual report from Commissioner A. J. MacLeod for the 1966-67 fiscal year, tabled in the Commons Tuesday by Solicitor-General Pennell, said only eight of 34 full-time positions for psychologists were filled.

An official of the service said Wednesday the situation has not changed significantly since the report was compiled.

'INADEQUATE'

The report also spoke of inadequate facilities for "really troublesome" prisoners in the maximum-security institutions.

However, the official said there have been improvements in this area with the decrease in prison population and the opening of a new maximum-security unit at Ste. Anne des Plaines.

Divorce Rebel Defeated

OTTAWA (CP) — An attempt to further broaden the government divorce legislation failed in the Senate banking and commerce committee Wednesday.

Committee members defeated two proposals for changes by Senator Roebuck. He's the upper chamber's divorce committee chairman and co-chairman of the joint parliamentary committee on divorce that recommended the government go further than it did in the divorce bill.

Roebuck failed with his proposal that wilful non-support for one year be made a ground for automatic divorce. Also defeated was his amendment to give the right of divorce to a spouse deserted for three years if there appeared to be no reasonable hope of reconciliation.

He said the total, including those in temporary detention, was 6,973 on Jan. 23 compared with 7,130 a year earlier.

The report noted that there had been two sit-ins by prisoners at Kingston penitentiary and one at Saskatchewan penitentiary over complaints of poor food and unsatisfactory medical services.

But there had been no violence and "investigations into the complaints, which were not substantiated, indicated that the majority of the inmates demonstrating were just followers of a hard core of troublemakers."

Stanfield Would Seek New Markets

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — A Conservative government would consider placing Canada in a large trading unit rather than rely on multilateral arrangements only, party leader Robert Stanfield said Wednesday night.

He told the Macdonald-Carter Club that Canada is one of the few industrialized countries with neither a large domestic market nor access to a special free-trade area.

"I would consider it one of the obligations of a new Conservative government to explore what lies ahead and consider the necessity of Canadian participation in a larger trading unit to permit a satisfactory development of our manufacturing industry," he said.

"Certainly we should consider the future of our trading relations with the countries of Central and South America and of Asia as well as with the United States, the Caribbean and Europe."

It was important to investigate a new Canadian role quickly because countries now are making new trading arrangements.

Britain's determination to join the Common Market provided serious food for thought for Canadians. Canada might have to amend some of its traditional notions about international trade.

He said it is the responsibility of government to provide access to markets, either existing or imminent.

As a result, "it may also be necessary to improve incentives and allow greater co-operation among industries which share an interest in particular markets or techniques."

Canada has relied largely on the U.S. for technological advances to improve productivity.

Women Don't Hide Brains

By YVONNE CRITTENDEN

TORONTO (Special) — You can talk about recipes and children if you wish . . .

But you're more likely to find yourself in the middle of a heated discussion on politics, sex, religion, or the evolution of species.

That's the main attraction for the women who belong to Toronto's most freewheeling and fascinating group — Mensa.

Here women are accepted as equals in every sense of the word.

There are no qualifications for age (except you must be over 14) color, sex, creed, politics or wealth.

There's just one snag:

To join Mensa your IQ rating must be 148 or better, which, says Mensa, puts you in the top two percent of the population.

Mensa (Latin for table) started in Toronto five years ago and is part of an international society of more than 18,000.

The Toronto group has about 180 members and there are 600 Mensa members across Canada.

Secretary of the local branch and in charge of membership for all of Canada is Martha Warnes, pretty 28-year-old former high school drop-out.

Drop-out?

"Yes," laughs Miss Warnes.

"One of the first myths we like to dispel about Mensa is that members must be university graduates. In fact, this has nothing to do with IQ and our members come from every sort of job or profession — from executives to mailmen and people on welfare."

GRADE 10

"I quite high school at Grade 10," she says. "I was bored to tears with the lack of challenge so I went to work."

At age 24 she decided to give education another try.

"I enrolled in a BA course, got hepatitis two weeks later and that was the end of that."

"Anyway, I knew already that it wasn't for me. I was too old and too critical to fit in. I felt my professors didn't really want their students to think for themselves and by that time it was too late — I had a mind of my own."

She's now working for Canada's top advertising agency, setting up a media data centre which is the first of its kind in Canada.

What do people feel about this group of super-IQs?

"There's a lot of interest and people automatically wonder whether they'd qualify," she says.

"But there's a lot of hostility.

too. People have asked me who the hell we think we are!"

Mensa is not just a social group.

"One of our main interests at the moment is to help a school, for gifted children from impoverished homes, which has just been set up by a priest in a remote Sicilian hill village," Miss Warnes says.

This is the sort of thing which interests Mensa members.

Another function is to make members available as control groups for research in psychological and social science experiments.

We treat bright children worse than we do the mentally deficient ones Miss Warnes believes.

"Unless you're part of the great in-between you don't fit in," she says.

"It makes me mad when I think of the fantastic amounts of time and money put into researching dull children while the bright ones are virtually ignored."

CONVICTIONS

Another of her strong convictions is that people don't live up to their full potential.

"Mensa people are no different," she says. "It's more noticeable, though, when you meet people who are highly intelligent and who are wasting their talents."

More men belong to Mensa than women because women are afraid to join, says Miss Warnes.

"Despite our so-called emancipation, men are still basically opposed to the idea that women can be as intelligent or more so than men," she says.

"Married women, particularly, must defer to the male ego. We're still pretty mid-Victorian."

She says women who join Mensa are delighted to be able to speak their minds freely without fear of male scorn.

"The same goes for teenagers. There are no restrictions on conversation at our meetings because there are young people present. We don't drive them away to join groups allied against adults."

Some of her comments on the role of today's woman:

— "The intelligent man can exist in harmony with society. He's accepted whether married or single. But the woman who chooses to be neither wife or mother and who wishes the freedom of a man is in trouble. She's the bullseye in the Establishment's target — she doesn't fit in."

— "A woman competing in a man's world takes longer to reach the same level as a man, regardless of ability. She has to prove herself twice as capable."

— "Most women collectively seem to feel they must discuss only women's affairs. Try discussing computers at your next bridge party!"

— "Maybe one day a mind will be accepted for being a mind — whether male or female — a mind which is capable of so much more than it has evidenced so far in our present stage of evolution."

Those interested in applying for Mensa membership should write to Mensa at Box 261, Adelaide St. P.O., Toronto.

They will be sent a preliminary IQ test to be done at home.

On the basis of results of this test they'll be advised whether they are eligible to take the final supervised Californian and British Cattell IQ tests.

Buyers Ignore de Gaulle

PARIS (AP) — Despite talk of boycott because of heightened friction between France and the United States, most American fashion buyers seem to be buying at the same old pace.

A survey as the spring and summer collections come to an end indicated that Paris still has a major attraction for the American fashion industry — despite President de Gaulle.

The fashion house association said sales figures are running about the same as last season. This is despite the fact that one major buyer in the past — Celanese Corp. — has not been seen at the shows.

Buyers have done most of their buying but some are holding up until they have seen Givenchy and Balenciaga at the end of the week.

Said one American wholesale manufacturer: "I have been coming to France regularly for over 30 years. I am not letting any sentimental considerations interfere with my business. I have been a faithful customer, and this painful development has made no difference either in my thinking or my buying policy."

"We all know what Gen. de Gaulle has done for France. We feel his attitude today may be a sign of old age. We will not allow that attitude toward America to affect our buying and spending money here for business. As usual I have found all my old pals and business connections as courteous and friendly as ever."

Mrs. Irene McGuire of Tacoma, formerly of Victoria, announces the engagement of her daughter, Katherine Dorothy, to Capt. Phillip Marle, USAF. The wedding will take place on Saturday, March 9, at the Protestant Chapel of McCord Air Force Base, Tacoma.—(Richards Studio)

Dear Ann Landers: I am a boy 11 years old whose nickname is "chevvie" because I was born in my father's Chevrolet.

All my friends were born in a hospital. How come my mother let me get born in my father's car?

I have asked my mother a dozen times to please explain this to me but she always says: "Not now, later."

I know how babies get here, Ann Landers, so please don't tell me I was a surprise. My mother knew I was coming. My father is always yelling at her because she is so slow. Why wasn't she in the hospital where she should have been? ASKER OF QUESTIONS.

Dear Asker: Don't blame your mother for being "slow." Maybe you were fast. Some babies give more warning than others.

One of these days you will find out what sort of a world this is and you'll ask yourself what was the hurry.

Dear Ann Landers: The girl I go with is great, but Sheila has one fault that really bugs me — she smokes like a chimney. This girl coughs all the time and she

Gaucha Style

By MARGARET NESS

BUENOS AIRES (CP) — South American life has contributed several songs and dances — notably the famous tango — to the international scene but only in 1967 has fashion taken a real look at the typical gaucha for inspiration.

Of course the ponchos worn by these cowboys of the Argentine and Montevideo pampas are much the same as those we borrowed some years back from the Mexican peasants. But the gauchos' bombachas are making a belated North American appearance in fashion. These are the full baggy trousers that pouch over thigh or almost knee-high boots.

For example, Pat Sandler of New York has introduced a variation in white gabardine, complete with ankle boots.

And in his centennial collection for Cel-Cl Fibres of Montreal, Louis Feraud of Paris has included his version of the bombacha. It's a pant-suit, in oyster white arnel viscose twill. The baggy pants are tucked into the boots in approved gaucha style. Under the sleeveless top is a black arnel jersey blouse.

And several milliners have introduced the wide-brimmed, stiff-crowned hat, with its under-the-chin ties, that is another gaucha trademark. Rudolph Valentino brought it to world attention in movie and stage appearance but, unaccountably, it never caught on then as an inspiration for women's hats.

But South American women wouldn't be caught dead in such native outfits. They are much too conservative. The only feminine trousered suits we noticed on the streets of the large cities we visited were on tourists. Nor did we see many mini-skirts. The exception was the beach areas of Rio de Janeiro where mini-skirts and casual clothes are acceptable.

Nor did we see many long-haired boys in South America except, again, in Rio's beach districts. However, we were fascinated by the fast and the large South American cities, the stores cater more to men than to women.

Annual Reports Show Busy Year

Reports read at the annual meeting Wednesday afternoon of Women's Auxiliary of Royal Jubilee Hospital indicated another busy and successful year for the group.

Mrs. Amy Deas, treasurer, reported total receipts of $8,124.60 as of Dec. 31, 1967, and included $6,303.29 in general account, $841.74 from dues and $379.57 in special account. Disbursements for the year included $1,000 for purchase of Government of Canada Bond; $167.79 to the hospital for purchase of B. P. Manometer; $400 to Lena Mitchell Educational Fund, and $100 for Student Nurses' Association.

Three of the biggest money-raising projects were TV rentals totalling $1,771.29, cradle photographs $1,309.11, and the annual bridge-tea which realized the sum of $549.20. Showcases in maternity ward showed receipts of $687.52 and the bookcase in women's medical needed $62.58.

Miss E. E. Wallace, recording secretary, pointed out in her report that auxiliary members gave some 340 hours of volunteer work preparing dressings in the central supply room of the hospital. She said Mrs. W. McConnell, convener, reported 19,524 dressings were done.

Miss Wallace also reported that the late Mrs. P. E. Corby was the auxiliary's representative last year to the Cancer Society and under her leadership the sum of $180 was collected for the Cancer Fund. Members also assisted in selling tickets, both at the hospital and at Woodward's Store for the cineradiographic equipment towards which the auxiliary had previously donated $5,000. A plaque to Miss Lena Mitchell was placed in the hospital and the Lena Mitchell Educational Fund award of $400 was presented to Miss Nan Dufour at the graduation ceremony by the auxiliary's president, Mrs. J. C. B. Keane.

Officers were all re-elected and are Mrs. Keane, president; Mrs. W. G. Thorpe, first vice-president; Mrs. W. R. Jeffs, second vice-president; Miss Wallace, recording secretary; Mrs. C. K. Rorke, corresponding secretary; Miss Deas, treasurer; Mrs. I. F. Rigby, membership chairman.

Murray Anderson; Miss Muriel Thompson, director of nursing; Miss Elizabeth Moore, assistant director of nursing; Rev. Angus Cameron; Mrs. W. W. Rogers, president, and Mrs. Arthur Cowden, vice-president of St. Joseph's Hospital Women's Auxiliary.

Report on Greece:

Burning, Shock Used On Prisoners

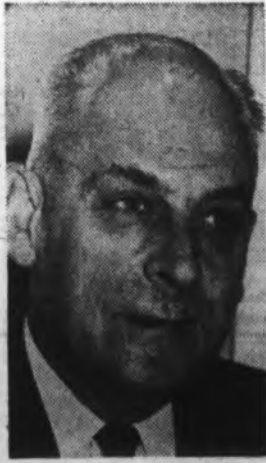

LONDON (Reuters)—Amnesty International reported Wednesday that prisoners of the Greek military regime undergo torture such as beating, burning, electric shock and extraction of finger and toe nails.

Other prisoners are made to listen to the screams until they collapse with nervous breakdowns, said a report issued by Amnesty on the latest of its investigations into the plight of Greek political prisoners.

Amnesty sent a delegation to Greece at the end of December. The team included American lawyer James Becket, who was reported to have spent four weeks taking statements from released prisoners and relatives of those still under arrest.

Amnesty was formed in London in 1961 to aid political prisoners.

Most of the torture is carried out by the security and military police, the report stated.

Hunter's Woods Death Ruled Accidental

Hunter Robert Goodrow died of an accidentally inflicted bullet wound Nov. 30, a coroner's jury ruled Wednesday night.

The jury ruled that Mr. Goodrow's hunting partner, inflicted the wound accidentally as the couple was hunting in the Highlands district near Ricky's Roost.

A recommendation was made by the jury that would-be hunters should be given a basic physical and firearm examination before a hunting licence was issued.

Conservation officer Jack Lenfesty advised the jury that any recommendation making it compulsory for hunters to wear red clothing in the bush would only remove caution.

"What about the hiker, the nature lover, or the fisherman who won't be wearing red? If you make it compulsory, you will only remove caution," he said.

Mr. Loudon said he and Mr. Goodrow were walking parallel in the dense brush. Mr. Loudon was walking a ridge and Mr. Goodrow was down in a valley. They were between 80 and 100 yards apart.

"I heard heavy tramping off to the right and thought that was Bob. I saw a flash of brown ahead and a blur of white. I brought up the rifle, looked again and it moved. I said that's a deer, and pulled the trigger," he said. "I never saw a patch of orange."

Mr. Goodrow was wearing an orange hunting cap, a dark brown coat with a white fur lining and brown pants. Mr. Loudon said he believed Mr. Goodrow had his coat open.

"I never saw anything that looked so much like a deer in my life," he said.

"I heard Bob call 'Gerry, Gerry, I'm hit.' I started running and fell. My hat fell off. I shouted 'Bob, are you hit?'"

"I tried lifting him but he was too heavy."

He ran for help, shouting. He found their car, drove away but overshot a corner and went into a ditch. Farther along the road he found a locked house. He broke the glass at front and rear, got in and phoned for help.

RCMP Corporal Ken Morrison testified he and Mr. Lenfesty had examined the area where the shooting took place and had difficulty seeing one another in the dense conditions.

Mr. Loudon's father, Peter Loudon, told the jury his son had been trained by an expert hunter who had won awards.

Answering a question by Mr. Loudon's father, Mr. Lenfesty said it was impossible to tell how a hunter would react in the strain of the hunt.

Quebec Liberal Officer:

New Grit Leader Must Step Lightly

MONTREAL (CP)—Richard L. M. Lord, English-speaking vice-president of the Quebec Liberal Party, issued a call Wednesday to "2,600 federal big 'L' Liberals to tread very carefully on what could be treacherously thin ice as they select Canada's next leader."

Lord, addressing a B'nai Brith group, said delegates to the leadership convention in April "must select a man who can carry on and do what has to be done in order to guarantee French-Canadian rights—but certainly not yield anything more to the provinces."

Lord said he would not name his preference among the candidates, but he emphasized that the next leader must for the sake of French-speaking Canadians as well as the rest of Canada be able to defeat Conservative leader Robert Stanfield.

STRONG BACKING

"Even with the Berlitz course Stanfield takes, it is not going to help him understand French-Canada—it he does not already—and what is absolutely required is a strong French-Canadian representation in the cabinet and an ability to understand that representation."

Referring to the Quebec Liberal party's recent rejection of the monarchy, Lord said he personally supports the monarchy because it "brings legitimacy" to Canadian government, but he added:

"I think that ultimately the monarchy is going to go—and most Canadians should prepare for that..."

Drug-Inspired Reflections Kept Personal by Youth

An 18-year-old youth who said he had smoked marijuana for five months told Magistrate William Ostler in central magistrate's court Wednesday the narcotics "made me realize a few things about myself."

Daniel Trowsdale, 784 Fairview made the comment after he pleaded guilty to being in possession of marijuana.

Magistrate Ostler asked Trowsdale what the smoking of marijuana had done for him.

"It made me realize a few things about myself," Trowsdale replied.

Magistrate Ostler: "It is self-revealing, is it?"

HIS CONCLUSIONS
Magistrate Ostler: "What conclusions have you come to about yourself?"

Trowsdale: "Personal things."

Magistrate Ostler: "But it did not help you to get any work, to get any room in the community or to become a good citizen?"

"No, sir."

Trowsdale was remanded for

sentenced to Saturday, when he will also be sentenced on three counts of breaking, entering and theft.

Charged with him is James Erio Brooke, 18, of 784 Fairview, who pleaded guilty to the three counts of breaking and entering, to being in possession of marijuana and to being a minor in possession of liquor.

Brooke was sentenced to two years less a day at the Young Offenders' Unit, with an indeterminate term of 18 months for the break-ins, six months for the narcotic charge and one day for the liquor offence. The sentences are concurrent.

MARIJUANA SEEDS
RCMP Constable Daniel Stene said he went Tuesday to the house where Brooke and Trowsdale were living and found an envelope hidden on a rafter in the basement. It contained what he estimated to be half an ounce of marijuana seeds.

Cpl. Peter Doherty of the Esquimalt force said Brooke entered the premises of Angeline Colfures, 312 Esquimalt, by a rear window Jan. 25 and let Trowsdale in through a door.

A button was found near the window, and when Brooke was questioned his shirt was missing a button.

FIGURES GIVEN
Stolen were a transistor radio and about $2 in change, Cpl. Doherty said. The following day, the pair broke into the Halfway Lunch, 866 Esquimalt, and stole $298, although Brooke said only $183 was taken.

Constable William Erickson of the Sidney RCMP said both youths broke into the home of James Mason, 9705 East View, Jan. 15 and stole a $250 rifle, a credit union book and a jacket.

The rifle was sold the same day for $70. All articles were recovered, Constable Erickson said.

Three people were fined when they pleaded guilty to infractions of the Unemployment Insurance Act.

Lenore Cordick, 115 Lady-smith, was fined $50. She received payments after saying she was available to work any day. She was in hospital at the time.

Antal Erdos, 220 Wilson, was fined $35 on each of three counts of not declaring his earnings while collecting unemployment insurance.

Alexander MacKenzie of 1861 Feltham was fined $35 on each of four counts of failing to declare his earnings.

A man who bought a case of beer Dec. 1 for an 18-year-old boy was fined $100 when he pleaded guilty to supplying liquor to a minor.

Magistrate Ostler told Terry Southwick of 3060 Earl Grey: "People like you are just one step better than a bootlegger."

Bertie Merrett, 615 Belton, was fined $100 for failing to remain at the scene of an accident. He struck a parked car Dec. 15 at Royal Roads.

James Dobbins, 1850 Argyle, was fined $25 when he was found guilty of causing a disturbance by being drunk.

Walter Bodger, HMCS Yukon, was fined $100 for driving while his licence was suspended.

Fined for careless driving: Robert Hardydes, 974 Darwin, $40; Robert Leverington, 3622 Tulkern, $35; Dean Shaw 1250 Tattersall, $40.

Our Principals

Twin Targets for Pupils

A sense of responsibility and an understanding of their own capabilities on the part of school children are the twin targets of A. M. McMorland, principal of Victoria West school.

Both, incidentally, are home-and-school projects.

A child may be told just what to do, and when, throughout the day. If it's left at that, the child will spend an entire lifetime waiting to be told what to do, and never acting on his own initiative.

Certainly by Grade 7 a child should know what must be done under given circumstances, and go ahead on his own.

The same child may give the right answer to a question in simple arithmetic: Five plus three equals eight. The next step should be to find out how he reached that answer.

Did he make a good guess? Did he count five fingers and three fingers? Did he take one hand as a group of five and add three fingers to it? A little questioning by the teacher will discover which — and develop in the youngster a confidence in his ability to use the best method.

By making children do their own thinking, without just accepting everything unquestioningly, Mr. McMorland hopes to have them give positive answers. Two often, he feels they give their answers on a rising inflection, with a questionmark at the end.

Mr. McMorland is a newcomer to the Greater Victoria school district, having come down from Duncan only last September.

Born and educated in Winnipeg, he attended United College there for a year before joining the RCAF in 1940. After five years' service which included a stint at Patricia Bay, he returned to Victoria, married a Duncan girl and sought a career.

He wanted more training, and teaching seemed to provide the answer, so he enrolled at the normal school here. His first job was at Duncan elementary for four years, then came nine years as principal of Yount elementary at Youbou.

Back in Duncan he was principal of Alexander elementary, seeing it grow during seven years from nine rooms to a staff of 24. With the growth his job also grew to that of supervising principal. — E.M.S.

Quebec Chair Gone

QUEBEC (CP) — Municipal and provincial police forces Wednesday were hunting for the ornate, hand-carved chair that is used by the provincial lieutenant-governor to deliver the speech from the throne.

It was stolen Tuesday from the legislative council chamber by several persons who were at first thought to be workmen.

The thieves carried it out under the eyes of dozens of persons, including an elevator operator, a security guard, a policeman and Remi Paul, speaker of the legislative assembly.

Some reports said the thieves might be students stealing it as part of winter carnival festivities of the University of Montreal.

The $2,000 chair is required by Lt.-Gov. Hughes Lapointe to open the assembly session Feb. 20.

In previous years, student thieves have stolen the official truce from the legislative council, a police riot truck and the mayor's chair from the Montreal city hall.

Toronto Mystery

Puff, Then Kapow!

TORONTO (CP) — Police say an explosion which ripped through the $300,000 home of bank president F. William Nicks Wednesday may have been touched off when the family chauffeur lit a cigarette. No damage estimate has been made.

The blast ripped the end off the two-storey, 12-room house in the exclusive residential Rose-dale district, caved in a wall of a neighboring house and scattered rubble in the street.

Chauffeur James Whitton, 43, was in satisfactory condition in hospital with burns to his face and hands. Mr. and Mrs. Nicks and a maid, the only others in the house when the explosion occurred at 8:40 a.m., were un-hurt.

BANK PRESIDENT
 Nicks is president of the Bank of Nova Scotia, which owns the house.

Flames which broke out in the central Toronto house shortly after the explosion were quickly extinguished.

The explosion blew in the wall of the house next door to the Nicks and left houses up and down the street with broken windows and falling plaster.

Power and telephone lines

feiled by the blast left neighbor-ing homes without lights, heat or telephones.

The street in front of the Nicks house was littered with rubble, including a dresser, bed, lumber and roof slates.

Det. Sgt. Stan Henderson of the Metropolitan Toronto police said Whitton smelled what he thought was sewer gas when he arrived at the house. He checked and then went up to the servants' quarters above the three-car garage to have a smoke.

SITS IN CAR

The explosion, which demol-ished the servants' quarters, oc-curred as Whitton opened a win-dow.

A policeman said Ralph Dil-worth, owner of the neighboring house whose wall was knocked in by the blast, was sitting in his car at the time.

The front end of the car was buried in rubble, the windshield was smashed and a door was ripped off but Dilworth was un-burt.

No Union For Dowler

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP)—Flanker Boyd Dowler of the Green Bay Packers said Wednesday he does not favor a proposal to unionize professional football players.

Dowler appeared at the winter convention of the Wisconsin Broadcasters Association as a stand-in for Packer coach Vince Lombardi, who was honored by the group.

"I am too old to get mixed up in joining a union," the Packer veteran said during a question period following his acceptance of a plaque on behalf of his boss.

"I don't believe it would be a good idea. I would just as soon take care of my own salary situation myself. I think it should be done on an individual basis, rather than collectively."

Lombardi was unable to appear because the annual player draft kept him in Green Bay.

Radio, TV 'Preoccupations'

Bill Rush Hurts Quebec

QUEBEC (CP) — Premier Daniel Johnson Wednesday referred to the federal government's handling of its broadcasting legislation as "an act of aggression" against Quebec on the eve of the federal-provincial constitutional conference.

Johnson told a news conference Ottawa seems to be rushing the bill for adoption prior to the conference next week when Quebec plans to raise "fundamental objections" over what it considers the bill's intrusion on provincial jurisdiction.

The premier said the bill provides "wide authority for the federal authority" in educational television but Quebec has not been consulted "even though Ottawa knows very well radio and TV are one of Quebec's major preoccupations."

The federal government "or at least certain ministers" seemed to be displaying "a lack of co-operation" at a time when relations between the two levels of government should be governed by "bonne entente (good-will)."

The premier also attacked a portion of the broadcasting bill which says "the national broadcasting system should contribute to national unity. . . ."

Johnson said the bill apparently leaves to the cabinet to determine the definition of national unity and it is theoretically possible to have a Canadian government which has no representative in Quebec.

The broadcasting bill went "against the grain" and "the law must not be adopted before Feb. 5." He added:

"I am asking the federal government to please not rush adoption of this act."

Johnson wrote Prime Minister Pearson a letter outlining Quebec's objections to the broadcasting bill several weeks ago when the premier also contended Quebec should have a say in operation of the CBC's French-language network.

He would not answer a question whether he has received an answer from Pearson, but said Quebec would bring the issue before the federal-provincial conference which starts Monday.

'Must' Clause Deleted By Tory Amendment

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons approved one Conservative amendment to the government's big broadcasting bill Wednesday but debate remained generally bogged down and will continue today.

State Secretary LaMarsh accepted the suggestion of Robert McCleave (PC-Hillman) changing a clause which said the objection of the CBC "must prevail" in any conflict with private broadcasting.

Now, any conflict "shall be resolved in the public interest" but with "paramount consideration" for CBC objectives. The amendment passed 54-22, with Liberals in favor, McCleave absent, and 20 Tories, one Social Credit and Liberal maverick Ralph Cowan opposed.

Province Winning Battle for Hearts

Heart disease is on the decline as a cause of death in British Columbia, the health department reported Wednesday.

In its annual report filed with the legislature, the mortality rate for heart disease during 1967 was given as 303 out of every 100,000 population. This compares with a record high of 350 per 100,000 in 1965.

The report also noted that B.C.'s population had climbed to 1,947,000, an increase of 3 per cent over the previous year.

At the same time, the province's birth rate was falling — now down to 17.3 per 1,000 population. The birth rate during 1966 was 17.8 per thousand, substantially below the peak rate of 26.1 for 1967.

The mortality rate, at 8.3 deaths per 1,000 population, was the lowest in more than 40 years.

Welfare Boost Urged By Social Workers

VANCOUVER (CP)—The provincial government should increase its welfare rates by 10 per cent to cover a rise in the cost of living, says the B.C. Association of Social Workers.

In a brief sent to Welfare Minister Campbell, the association said there has been no increase in rates since the minimum was established in May, 1965.

House Ferry Fuss

Political Query Denied

Highways Minister P. A. Gagliardi inquired about the political aspirations of a citizen who was condemning the department's Lytton ferry, the legislature was told Wednesday.

Mr. Gagliardi at once denied the charge, aided by William Hartley (NDP, Yale-Lillooet). "He is speaking at length about things that never existed," said the minister.

Mr. Hartley went over the history of complaints about the ferry which carries passengers and vehicles across the Fraser River. He listed eight deaths, including those of two men operating the ferry who were shot.

The ferry crosses the Fraser between Lytton and Westside, where a community of 262 has service only between 7 a.m. and 7 p.m.

Mr. Hartley said the highways minister asked Jack Kerman of the Lytton Ferry Action Committee, about Kerman's political aspirations, and "Kerman replied he belonged to no political party and was not running for any political office."

Garden Notes

Prepare for Spring

By M. V. CHESNUT

One factor that brings untold numbers of prairie dwellers to our shores every year is our reputation for being the only place in Canada where one can mess around in the garden almost all year round. This may be true in theory, but if you have to go to the office or shop every day, there isn't enough daylight after supper to do any outdoor work through the winter months, and on weekends it either rains or the soil is too wet and sloppy.

With the days already lengthening, though, the urge to get cracking on some garden chores is already making itself felt, and one way you can satisfy this yen is to busy yourself over some odd jobs which can be done under cover.

Our garden tools, for instance, can do with an overhaul, for there is never enough time to check them over once outdoor work begins in earnest. Many of our implements need to be cleaned and sharpened and given a wipe with an oily rag, while the edges of the spade, hoe and half-moon edging iron should be dressed with a file or sharpened on a grinding wheel. The work always goes so much better when the tool's edge is keen. The hand trowel, too, is a lot more pleasant to use when the blade is sharp.

Better pay a little attention to hoe and rake handles too, for any roughness can cause painful blisters to hands softened by a winter of idleness. Rub them down with sandpaper, then oil the wood thoroughly with boiled linseed oil. Check the handle of the trowel too, and if you are in the habit of mislaying this most essential of all garden implements, it is a good idea to paint the handle a bright Chinese red so it will stand out and catch the eye against the green of the garden.

The sharpening of shears, secateurs, clippers and the lawn mower are really specialists' jobs, and unless you have the proper training and know the techniques and grinding angles, it is better to send these tools out to a professional to be put into first-class condition for the busy season ahead.

One very essential accessory, particularly in the vegetable plot, is a good garden line, and only too often this consists of nondescript lengths of grocers' twine knotted together and strung between two sticks of wood. I made myself a dandy out of discarded fishing gear — a length of stout cod line, with two steel surveyor's stakes and an old brass coil spring to keep the line taut when in use.

I think it adds enormously to the appearance of the vegetable plot when the rows are as straight as Grenadier Guards on parade, and with the seedlings evenly and neatly spaced; a garden line is essential for this. It adds to the interest in all parts of the garden, too, if the plants and rows are neatly and correctly labelled. One of my rainy-day jobs is painting labels.

At one time, I used to whittle out my own labels, but I find I can buy much better ones, beautifully finished, at most of the garden shops, and for only a few cents per dozen. These are given a wipe with a rag dipped in flat white paint, which puts a thin smear on the label and leaves a grand surface to write on. I use one of those felt-tipped india-ink pens that cost 29c; incidentally, this type of marking pen is grand for writing on flower pots too, and will even write on peat pots.

Wooden seed flats and seed-starter boxes will need some overhauling. Bottom boards are probably rotted and will need replacing, and to guard against the transmission of disease from one generation of plants to another, the boxes should be scrubbed with a little household disinfectant in hot, soapy water.

ART BUCHWALD Follows Instructions

What to Do After Next War

WASHINGTON — Anyone who doubts that the U.S. government is prepared for the Third World War just doesn't know how organized Washington really is. The other day someone who works for the treasury department received his instructions in writing on what he was to do in case of enemy attack.

They read as follows, and I haven't made a word of it up: "All National Office Employees with or without emergency assignments should follow this procedure. If you are prevented from going to your regular place of work because of an enemy attack — keep this instruction in mind: "GO TO THE NEAREST POST OFFICE, ASK THE POSTMASTER FOR A FEDERAL EMPLOYEE REGISTRATION CARD (sample shown on reverse side). FILL IT OUT AND RETURN IT TO HIM. "He will see that it is forwarded to the office of the Civil Service Commission which will maintain the registration file for your area. When the Civil Service Commission receives your card, we will be notified. "We can then decide where and when you should report for work ... you should obtain and complete your registration card as soon after enemy attack as possible, but not until you are reasonably sure where you will be staying for a few days ... "Nobody believes it will ever happen, but let us suppose that Robert Smiley (a fictitious person working for the treasury department) has just crawled out of the rubble after an enemy attack and remembers the instructions concerning civil defence for federal employees. "After waiting for four days and 350 miles, Smiley finally finds a post office that is still standing. He staggers up to a window, but just as he gets there, the man behind it says, "Sorry, this window is closed," and slams it down. Smiley stumbles to the next window and is told to get in line behind 20 other people. Two hours later he gets to the head of the line and croaks, "I want to register ... " "I'm sorry," says the post office clerk. "This window is just for stamps. Registered mail is at the next window." "No, no," says Smiley. "I want a federal employee registration card." "We don't sell those. Now do you want any stamps or don't you?" "You see," says Smiley, holding out the window, "I was instructed after the enemy attacked to find the nearest post office and fill out a card." "You better try the parcel post window," the clerk suggests. Smiley goes over to the parcel post window and gets in line with 30 people. Four hours later he is informed that the post office has run out of federal employee registration cards. They suggest he try another post office. Smiley staggers out into the road and starts walking again. Four-hundred miles up the highway he finds another post office. After catching his breath, he takes the card shakingly to the counter and starts to fill it out. But the pen won't work. He informs the postmaster of this and the postmaster replies, "We know it, but there's nothing we can do about it. There's a war on." "But I've got to register," says Smiley, "or the Civil Service Commission won't know where I am in case the treasury wants to start up again. Couldn't I borrow your pen?" "What? And ruin the point? Listen, why don't you go over to the Smithsonian post office. I hear their pens are still in working order." Clutching the card, Smiley walks 60 miles to Smithsonian where he fills it out. He mails it that very day. Years later, Smiley is still waiting for a reply. For in his haste and fatigue, Smiley had forgotten to write down his return zip code.

Stars Battle Tax Men

HOLLYWOOD (NANA) — The John Waynes aren't the only stars battling with the income tax people over what is and what isn't taxable. The Waynes have a big tax nut to crack — in the neighborhood of $250,000. Maureen O'Hara is next in line. For the past eighteen months Maureen has been telling the infernal revenue that she does not owe them $100,000 as they claim. And there are many other stars who are wishing they had put it away when they made it. It's simpler, of course, when you have a Swiss residence.

No breed of people are as restless as movie stars. When they are not redecorating their homes, they are selling and moving somewhere else. Laurence Harvey put $350,000 into his Carbon Beach pad. Now, when he has barely moved in, he is putting it on the market and will build a super mansion in Palm Springs where he has been the frequent guest — so many times that I thought he owned the place — of wealthy widow, Mrs. Joan Olsen ... and Danny Thomas, who paid $35,000 for a broken-down little Spanish place on Elm Drive in Beverly Hills two decades ago, and transform it into a beautiful home at a cost of $150,000, says the house is now too easy for tourists to get at, and he is looking at plots in the swank and more private Trousdale area. Danny is many times a millionaire and what is there to do in Hollywood but figure out ways of turning over the cash.

Peter Sellers, who is so devoted to his children — the older two have just gone back to school in England after visiting him for the holidays — will not accept any films to follow his current film at Warner's, I Love You Alois B. Toklas, until he has returned to England for another family reunion. Peter is pleased with his role in "Alice," and is talking of another film with the same authors, Paul Mazursky and Larry Tucker.

The new Peyton Place regular, Joyce Kilmer, is a character. "I'm 20 going on 50," she explains, adding that she has been engaged to be married six and a half times — the half happened when mother refused to announce the seventh engagement. Her eating habits are also strange. There she was in the 20th Century-Fox cafe, another her vegetables with a scoop of ice cream. Ugh.

Jacqueline Bisset, who replaced Mia Farrow in Frank Sinatra's Tony Rome, will have something larger in Joe Pasternak's picture, The Sweet Ride. And she will be working with Michael Sarrazin of The Film From Man. Michael is also her No. 1 in real life.

Veteran writer Nunnally Johnson was summing up Hollywood. "It's a place where everyone makes a million dollars a picture except those who make $75,000 a picture."

Truth Survives Fads

DR. STUART ROSENBERG

In the 1930s some used to pray: "Science is my shepherd; I shall not want. "It maketh me to lie down in green pastures, "It leadeth me beside the still waters. "It restoreth my soul ... "Yes, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil — "For Science is with me ... "After the hells scientific heavens have spewed forth, Shepherd Science has fallen from celestial grace. Enter then, the psychological potentate of our mid-century — Social Science as Shepherd. And now the prayer reads: "The idea of God serves as my external-internal integrative mechanism. "The God-idea assures me that I shall not feel deprived of gratifications for my viscerogenic hungers or my neurodispositional. "The God-idea helps me to orient myself towards a non-social object with effective significance. "It positions me in a non-decisional situation. "It helps me overcome fear, anxiety and my neurotic drives. "It maximizes my adjustment. Every age escapes into its own "lingo" — the tall-tale language that betrays its own transient, temporary character. If tomorrow's truths, however, have no relation to the truths of today — because everything is relative — then each age is doomed to worshipping itself and its wisdom alone — as God. * * * Something is there that goes beyond the facts, theories and the intellectual jargons of each new age. That something is Man — wherever, wherever and whoever — universal, eternal Man. And Someone there is who humanizes man — who ennobles his transience, exalts his earthbound visions, enlarges his parochial vocabulary, and links his tentative truths to the eternal and the universal.

'Beat Generation Aids Narcotic Violations'

OTTAWA (CP) — The RCMP has complained of a "complete disregard for the law concerning drugs" by the beat generation. But it says there is no serious addiction problem among juveniles.

The annual report of RCMP Commissioner M. F. A. Lindsay, tabled in the Commons by Solicitor-General Pennell, showed a 71.8-per-cent increase in offences under the Narcotics Control Act during the 1966-67 fiscal year ended last March 31.

This compared with a 14.9-per-cent increase in investigations of Criminal Code offences, to 170,746 from 148,670 the previous year.

Offences against property showed the greatest increase in the Criminal Code section, up 17.2 per cent. Sex offences increased by 14.7 per cent and offences against persons by 13.1 per cent.

Murders, attempted murders and manslaughter were down 5.9 per cent.

Discussing the increase in drug crimes, the report says the beat generation "became a fact in Canada" in 1966.

SERVES AS HOST

"This trait of human behavior was evident in virtually every institution of higher learning and in every larger city.

"The queer dress and the long hair is of no concern to police authorities. The beat generation, however, poses a police problem in that it serves as a host to persons prone to the abuse of marijuana."

By disregarding the law, the report says, members of the "beatnik element" deprive themselves of a normal future.

During 1966, a total of 398 persons were charged with offences related to marijuana compared with 162 in 1965 and 78 in 1964.

In addictive drugs, the main problem centred in Vancouver where more than half the 3,182 known addicts lived. Of 441 heroin-related charges laid in the whole country, 382 were in Vancouver.

Supplies of heroin were generally unstable except in Vancouver, the report says. There was only limited activity in international smuggling and the amount of drugs supplied by Montreal was considerably smaller than in previous years.

You Gain 20% More Room to Relax With A Sealy Queen Size . . . Now on Sale

Sealy "Rest Guard" Queen-Size 2-Piece Sleep Set

For the first time Sealy has combined three of their finest (and costliest) features from three of their best-selling mattresses. The same cover used previously on a Posturepedic; flange-reinforced edge support; Dura-Gard Innerspring on another nationally advertised Sealy. The result? An inexpensively priced, marvellously comfortable "Rest Guard" mattress that's truly an exceptional value. All this, plus 312-coil construction; scroll quilting; sisal crown for extra support; flange-reinforced edge; white felt over sisal pad. The Queen Size is 5' wide by 6'8" long which is 6" wider, 6" longer than double beds; It will easily fit your present bed with adaptor rails; the extra space is hardly noticed in most bedrooms . . . yet you'll enjoy greater comfort, added luxury and tremendous savings.

Britain Loses Cool But Not Victoria

ABREAST OF THE TIMES: Geography played a cruel trick on London barrow-boy Mark Nykerk. He sold a rubber doll called Sexy Anna and was fined £2. A magistrate ruled the Japanese-made six-inch doll indecent so the street vendor was hit for $5.20.

If he had sold the same Sexy Anna in Victoria, not a soul would have cared.

The dolls are readily available for 95 cents, but Nora Stackard, who runs the Fort Street Trick Shop, reports no heavy demand. I dropped around to see if wicked Victoria was interested in the doll, but what's banned in the cosmopolitan London is small stuff here.

Sexy Anna drops the top of her bikini when she is squeezed, with what her blue box describes as "delicious action, a bachelor's delight."

For the swingers who think big, there are six-foot-high plastic blow-up dolls, but they come high. The U.S. price is $89.50 but Mrs. Stackard says, "They would cost half as much again landed here, so we have only had inquiries so far."

"We sell plenty of false fronts and bottoms at $1.59 and $1.95 — mostly to men. I outfitted three Lady Godivas last year and even included a blonde wig. But a good plastic bust costs $2.98 and they are really made of heavy plastic."

There are even blow-up legs complete with a nylon stocking, shoe and garter for the playboy who wants something to pop out of his birthday cake.

One thing seems sure — it will be a long time before the bottom drops out of Mrs. Stackard's business. Sorry about poor Mark Nykerk. Perhaps he can sell off his stock cheap in Victoria.

BONE TO PICK: George Hess at the Colony Inn has come up with the instant high-protein lunch for the customers who feel they are just getting too many calories in the bar.

He combines a grilled pork chop, a jumbo prawn and two chicken wings with a cluster of French fries and a spicy crabapple. Mr. Hess puts them in a wooden bowl and calls it his Tom Jones special. The creation is eaten from the fingers without benefit of cutlery. For the fastidious, Mr. Hess provides a finger-bowl and a slice of lemon. All this for $1.

THERE'S NO WAY: It seems Air Canada oversold the flight to Vancouver one day this week. Symphony conductor Laszlo Gati and French violinist Christian Ferras were told there were no places, so they and two others were offered a trip to Vancouver in a small airplane. The enigmatic Hungarian conductor just looked at it and said, "They have to be kidding."

Four braver souls finally agreed to take the adventure tour, and Mr. Gati went on to Calgary to fill a conducting date.

COULD BE SOON: The recommendations of the culture committee have gone to the provincial cabinet for approval. So far the methods of divvying up the interest from the $5,000,000 set aside last January are not known, but there have been a few stabs in the dark.

The word is that major grants have gone to the established groups like the orchestras and the galleries while a fund has been set aside for the smaller organizations. Exact date for announcing the bounty is not known.

NO GO-GO: The announcement of the Club Cameo was premature. Spokesman for the company handling the sale of the Stuart Building says there is no deal to have a night spot at the Douglas and Johnson location.

J. B. Law of Pemberton Holmes Ltd. said, "We had inquiries from people interested in starting a club, and they assumed the space was available. It is not, but they must have acted on their assumption."

Questioned on the possibility of the premises being used to house the Victoria branch of the Bank of British Columbia, the real estate man was cautious. All he said was, "It would make rather a nice bank." It still seems to me like the spot.

Your Good Health

Osteoporosis Can Be Helped But Only One Doctor Needed

By JOSEPH MOLNER, MD

Dear Dr. Molner: Do you know a diet or diet supplement that would slow down the process of crumbling bones? I fell in the bathtub last June and my hips and back stayed sore so long that I went to the doctor and got X-rays.

They showed no fracture but the doctor said the bones were crumbling. He gave me some capsules, and so did another doctor, also my dentist. I believe they were all talking about the same condition and felt I could be helped. I am in my 70s. What would you advise, and what is this condition called? — Mrs. E.C.S.

My advice would be to stick to one doctor and not try to mix medications handed out by three of them.

It would help if I knew what your diagnosis was — they've seen you, and I haven't. But your condition, as near as I can gather, might well be osteoporosis, which usually can be helped, although not quickly. Osteoporosis is a loss of calcium in the bones. The bones become less dense and solid, and thus more subject to fractures. The more frequent problem, however, isn't fractures, but rather some change in the joints and resultant pains of an arthritic type. Changes in the spine can readily cause such pains.

Osteoporosis is one thing to watch for in women past menopause, because the change in hormone level can have an effect on loss of calcium without sufficient replenishment of new calcium in the bones.

Thus giving hormones is one step toward relieving the trouble. The diet should include sufficient protein and calcium (milk or skim milk or cream cheese is rich in calcium), and sometimes a vitamin supplement to encourage depositing of calcium is helpful, too.

BONE STRENGTH Finally — this is a very simple thing, and overlooked by some patients perhaps because it is so simple — exercise is important. Why? Because exercise plays an important part in developing strength of the bones.

I do not, of course, mean that exercise has to be intense or prolonged, but just keeping active will help harden the bones again, and as this occurs, the discomfort from the softening or "crumbling" is eased.

Coal Kicks Off Superport

should be a further announcement.

Commenting on reports that Mr. Hellyer would be on the coast this weekend, Mr. Bonner said he was in communication with the federal minister about Roberts Bank, but had received no indication of the visit. He added: "I'd be glad to meet him if there is something to be discussed."

Mr. Bonner said the government's long-term interest in Roberts Bank was prompted by a desire to rescue what had become "a foundering commercial project for the Fernie area," the coal industry.

The Tokyo announcement was made by J. L. Ashby, president of Kaiser Steel Corporation, and Chujiro Jukino, president of Mitsubishi-Sohji Kaisha, representing seven big Japanese steel producers.

Mr. Ashby said Kaiser would buy the 65,000-acre Crows Nest Industries Ltd. coal property at Fernie and start right away on a $55,000,000 development and construction program there.

Canadian Pacific Railway said in Montreal that it was ready to begin a massive shuttle program to carry the coal 700 miles from Fernie to Roberts Bank in three 100-car "unit trains."

Some confusion was injected into the announcement when Mr. Hellyer told the House of Commons that the deal included a guarantee of use of an all-Canadian rail route from Fernie to Roberts Bank.

Meanwhile, a spokesman for Crows Nest Industries at Fernie said it would begin construction of a $15,000,000, 68-mile railway to link up with the Great Northern main line in Montana for movement of another 400,000 tons of coal to other parts of North America.

In Victoria Wednesday, Gene Clemmer, superintendent of industrial relations for Kaiser, met Mines Minister Donald Brewster and Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell to discuss details of the Fernie development.

The discussions with Mr. Brewster covered anti-pollution measures to be taken by the company at its new coal-handling facilities and future of the present Crows Nest underground mine, which employs 400 men.

Mental

to clean up the incredible mess in our mental health services. It is ludicrous, it is beyond belief, that there are 100 psychiatrists who are prevented from treating mental patients because they do not have access to hospital beds.

Dr. McGeer said "sense, sanity and enlightenment" are brought to bear on mental health problems in this province all mental health services will eventually be integrated with those in general hospitals.

"End the absurd pursuit of separate and competing services," he said, "Give the mentally ill some hope... and a passport to the 20th century."

He also accused the government of financing B.C. Hydro borrowing, estimated at $32,000,000 over the next five years, at the expense of municipalities, schools and hospitals.

"B.C. Hydro, which had a profit of less than $10,000,000 last year, has a balance sheet which simply will not support its ballooning debt structure," Dr. McGeer said.

"It is this borrowing which lurks behind every debate in this legislature. It is this borrowing which threatens every human need in this province, which competes for financial resources that would otherwise go into hospitals, schools, housing or municipal works."

Campbell River Schools

Research Gets Money

By BRANT FELKER

CAMPBELL RIVER—The school board has set aside $25,000 for education research and development. This is the first time such a fund has been established.

The money will be allocated to school principals where the board "considers it reasonable to encourage progressive ideas."

The draft budget, up 21.4 per cent to $3,272,250 on last year, was passed unanimously by trustees.

A suggested use of the $25,000 fund is to pay salaries of teachers' aides; they are not qualified to teach, but they can carry out time-consuming non-teaching duties.

Appointee

Board chairman Bruce Saunders introduced Campbell River lawyer Curtis Lazerte to other members. He has been appointed by the provincial government to bring the board up to strength. A vacancy existed and no person was nominated at the last election.

Mr. Saunders also named vice-chairman Allan Rollins to head the education committee with Mrs. Rosalind Looma and Peter Loren.

Dr. John Ross will head the health committee, and will be aided by Mr. Lazerte and Jack Johnson of Sayward.

Health, Library

The board will be represented on the Upper Island Health unit by Mrs. Looma. She will also represent the board on the Upper Vancouver Island Library.

Staff engineer Nelson Kuhn has been named to the town planning board and Curtis Lazerte to the parks and recreation commission.

Superintendent James Logie obtained permission for a reciprocal visit to Evergreen School by the students of Shelbourne School in Victoria on Feb. 8 and 9.

About 25 students will visit Campbell River from Victoria, some of whom have never been here previously.

Building For Future

Rapid progress is being made on major expansion to Nanaimo's Shoreline Hotel. Hotel will jump from 64 to 83 rooms. Picture taken from air shows patio deck. Horizon Construction is doing job. — (Les Englefield)

Qualicum Man Lost in Ocean

NANAIMO — A 23-year-old Qualicum Beach man is missing, presumed drowned, after he fell from a boat off Newcastle Island early Wednesday morning.

He is Albert Kitto.

Mr. Kitto was a passenger in a boat being rowed by John Glebe. He fell from the boat as it approached Newcastle Island, about 600 yards offshore.

Mothers Successful

Family Breakup Brings Service

By KLAUS MUENTER

DUNCAN — A Cowichan Indian mothers' delegation to the provincial government last summer had far-reaching results.

Social welfare services have been stepped up considerably.

About 75 band members at a general meeting were told by Ben George of the band's welfare committee, several important services are now being provided.

Mr. George said the Indian mothers asked the deputy minister of welfare to extend provincial services on reserves.

Children Astray

"The women told him families were breaking down and children going astray because of a lack of professional services."

The deputy minister initiated a three-month project on the recommendation of the federal-provincial Indian committee.

The decision resulted in a study of the needs of child welfare on the reserve by a professional worker, and in the formation of a band welfare committee which assisted the social worker in serving 25 families.

Mr. George said the committee and the social worker became involved with several families interested in foster homes, and a training course for 12 homemakers is being conducted now to assist families in distress.

Indians, Whites

Chief Dennis Alphonse said the Indian homemakers will be available to Indians and white people.

Band secretary Louise Underwood said "There are tentative plans for a receiving home for neglected children."

"The department of social welfare will rent a building from the Westholme band for three months, where children will be accommodated temporarily."

"In the past, relatives used to look after children who were neglected."

Four Workers

After the three-month period an association will rent the building.

Mr. George told band members the social worker was able to work with many children, but did not take any of them from their homes.

Miss Underwood said the recent re-organization of the local branch of the provincial social welfare services, made it possible to have a total of four professional field workers look after the Indian and white communities.

Three of them will specialize in child welfare.

Buy Services

Miss Underwood said, "The project worker, Harkel Singh, who carried out the study, submitted a 34-page report on his experiences to the deputy minister of social welfare."

The band's welfare committee will continue to co-operate with the professional welfare workers.

The band members were advised all those new services will be purchased from the provincial government by the federal government.

Miss Underwood said Indian agent Ron Sampson suggested inviting one member each from bands from the Malahat to Chemainus Bay to attend an explanatory meeting.

Regular Study

Parents will be asked to send their children to school regularly, and parents whose children are absent will be phoned by members of a special phoning committee.

The band's education chairman Norman Joe stressed the importance of regular school attendance and education.

Zorkin

Citizen Offers Reward

NANAIMO — Dr. Madin Zorkin has offered $100 reward to anyone who can give information leading to conviction of at least one group of vandals.

Wednesday he said "The public must help to catch these vandals."

He said the police cannot be expected to patrol every inch of the city and surrounding district. In the final analysis it is up to aware members of the public to help them.

He said at Terminal Park Shopping Centre (a client of his realty firm) damage to lighting and shrubs had been extensive during the past two months.

"If this is allowed to continue, we might as well be living in a jungle," he said.

A total of $200 had been spent replacing colored lights in the area.

More than 50 have been shattered along the highway.

The lights in most cases are covered by wire mesh, and have plastic hoods.

Within a four-day period, damage to property has totalled $2,000 in the city. Windows have been smashed in a dozen businesses and schools.

Island Scene

Marg Warwick is a member of both planning and properties commissions in Nanaimo.

Elita Johnson from Klen Klen Ahut and Mrs. Bill Georgeson, Koksilah, are members of a new phoning committee of the Cowichan Indian band, which will try to persuade parents to send children to school regularly. . . . W. S. Wood reported for the board of stewards at a meeting of the congregation of the Union Bay United Church. . . . Former Miss Alberni Valley, Judy Garrard, will be married Feb. 17 to John William Bailey in Vancouver.

Young Brains Intact No Washing Allowed

FULFORD — Is school a form of brainwashing? The suggestion drew heavy applause at an energetic forum on youth and politics here.

Spokesmen for the province's four main political parties debated education with four students.

The political representatives were opposed to requests from the students that there should be more political education in the schools.

One of the politicians, a teacher, said "It would be too easy to direct a student's thinking."

Student Brenda Sharp said she was surprised political speakers would oppose political education because students might be brainwashed.

And she drew applause when she said "What is school. Isn't it brainwashing?"

The students claimed that because of the lack of political education, they are unprepared to cast a vote when they reach 21.

Sanwich MLA John Tisdalle said "I would feel very concerned if I thought the school was to be a place of party politics."

He told the students, "You have books in the library, you can read many subjects related to politics."

"You should be allowed to form your own opinions on these important subjects."

Tisdalle

But student Wayne Taylor said "Politics should be brought to the youth, because in 15 years they will be running the country."

The students wanted to know more about interpretation of the law.

people to wait until they are old enough to vote.

Mr. Tisdalle said "The policeman interprets the law when he tries to correct a driver."

And someone cracked, "Break the law, and you'll get an interpretation."

Mr. Tisdalle retorted "The best law is self-discipline."

Church Just for Birth, Marriage, Death?

By JEAN MacGREGOR

DUNCAN — An Anglican congregation has decided today's church services are not meeting the needs of the people. This is because:

● There is a gap between the pew and the pulpit which the clergy doesn't know exists.

● The language used is old fashioned and should be altered so that "we say what we mean."

● The hymns are too old, both in words and music, and should be thrown out.

These views were expressed at St. John's annual meeting, where rector Rev. G. Allan Kerr asked his parishioners to split into four discussion groups.

He asked them to bring up questions facing the church in today's world.

Some asked "What about the man in the street who never attends church? What is the general picture of the church to the outsider?"

"The church to the man in the street is a building where babies are 'done', couples are married and buried; and the church is for the saintly few," several church members replied.

Set Standard

The parishioners also felt the church should be more definite in its views on local and world affairs instead of sitting on the fence in many cases.

They said, "The church should speak out and be heard, but she has remained silent and lost her image of what she is supposed to be."

One group attacked some of the churches' functions: "Confirmation has come to be something cute; it is a kind of graduation from religion" was the way some parishioners thought.

Stop Building

The group also agreed changes should be made in the ceremonies for baptism, funerals and weddings. They said, "There should be a standard set for those who only use the church at special times."

Another group dealt with the combining of parishes, and the questions they answered were "How do you think the diocese can meet these obligations?" and "What can our parish do?"

The parishioners agreed that the synod should be firm with those churches which are struggling each year with financial problems.

"Churches with a handful in the congregations should be closed," was one reply.

The group also noted if the province taxed the churches "They would have to close."

Poor Salaries

They also felt no more churches should be built in the area, and consideration should be given to the use of homes for worship and other church functions.

In the group which discussed "The church and young people," one of the main reasons given for the drop in the number of men who enter the ministry was that "Many feel they are not at liberty to express their convictions in the ministry."

As one young man expressed it, "They are being told what to do by a lot of old fuddy-duddies."

Other parishioners listed poor salaries, lack of encouragement in the home, and the critical attitude of parents toward the ministry in front of their children.

Lazy Parents

The group also agreed young people are often discouraged in pursuing this career by guidance officers in the public school system.

Most churches find there is also a decrease in the number of church-school pupils, Sunday school teachers, and mid-week activity leaders.

Parents who have a "don't care" attitude were also blamed for the decrease, as well as the many parents who are becoming "lazier" in their duties in education and religion.

Another reason is that other organizations are taking priority in today's world.

Easy Entrance

Mr. Kerr said, "One startling fact brought to the attention of the parishioners got some very interesting reactions. The statement was 'The Dominion Bureau of Statistics informs us that on Vancouver Island there are 100,000 Anglicans not on parish lists nor known to the clergy.'"

One reaction was the question should be abolished by the bureau because "Canada is the only country that asks this stupid question." (This is incorrect, among the others is Australia.)

Others felt membership in the church was made too easy, and a proper foundation had not been laid for these people.

Mr. Kerr stated, "Discussing these questions which are facing us today is not going to solve the churches' problems overnight, but I found the results of the discussion groups were very interesting. The people are thinking about these things."

During the meeting, the parishioners agreed to assist in the adoption of an African child by the congregation.

Mr. Kerr said the next step will be the setting up of a committee.

Holy Trinity

Mumford Meritorious

CUMBERLAND — Continued progress of Holy Trinity Church was reported by the vicar when he welcomed parishioners to the annual parish meeting.

Special tribute was paid to T. H. Mumford, who has been a choir member and bell ringer for 51 years.

The women's auxiliaries of Cumberland and Royston reported they had had a successful year.

In addition to the Anglican Church women's obligations, financial support to the extent of $325 had been given Holy Trinity.

Africa For Doug

Douglas McAdams, 20, of Duncan, a third-year political science student at the University of Victoria, has been chosen to attend a six-week seminar in French West Africa this summer.

He will be one of about 40 Canadian university students sent to the seminar by World University Service of Canada. Mr. McAdams, who is bilingual, will visit the French-speaking countries of Mali, Senegal and the Ivory Coast.

FATAL DISEASE

Rabies is a fatal infectious disease which may affect any warm-blooded animal including man.

It was noted that more support had been given such causes as the theological college and the special needs of the diocese fund.

St. Catherine's Guild, Fanny Bay, had maintained its annual grant of $120.

It was reported and the grant

Apologies All Around

covering the first half of 1968 had already been received.

Rev. David B. Houghton re-appointed Mr. Apps vicar's warden, and Walter Clark was unanimously re-elected people's warden.

Mr. Mumford, hall committee chairman, reported in excess of 50 hall engagements over church and Sunday school use.

Out of an income of $420 about $135 had been given to church funds.

Tom Ball was commended for his continued interest and help in hall maintenance.

Treasurer George Apps gave the financial reports indicating some accounts remained unpaid.

He made a written acknowledgment that you have called at each home," said Magistrate Eric Winch.

NANAIMO — A young sheet metal worker agreed Wednesday to apologize to everybody on Bradley Street for speeding, instead of paying the usual $25 fine.

"You can either pay the fine or personally call at every house on Bradley Street, apologize for your speeding and bring back to me a written acknowledgment that you have called at each home," said Magistrate Eric Winch.

"How long is Bradley Street?" asked Larry Daniel, 22.

"About two good city blocks," replied Magistrate Winch.

Agreed, said Daniel, who said he planned to start Saturday.

You May Frolic in Snowfall But Don't Forget Birdies

By BEA HAMILTON

FULFORD — With snow just covering the ground and shrouding the bushes and trees, the first of the purple finches arrived at Fulford.

Other feathered strangers arrived at the same time and are all busy feeding with the many juncos, towhees, song sparrows and tree sparrows.

Even the seagull comes in for some food but he gets shooed away. The blue Steller's Jay also feeds here now and then.

Many people don't think of it but these birds need food and water — especially water.

The sparrows will even take a bath if they can get in the water before it freezes over — they have to work fast and can only take a quick dip as all the other birds demand a drink.

It is a lively spot with dozens of birds flitting from table to drinking basin every second.

Birds enjoy slides, it seems. A broom was propped against the rail on the verandah and a small sparrow discovered she could slide down the handle and away she went to the bottom.

Careless Driving

SHAWNIGAN LAKE—George Howe, 61, was fined $50 in Magistrate's Court Wednesday, when he pleaded guilty to driving without due care and attention. His driver's licence was suspended for six months. Police said Mr. Howe had been involved in a two-car accident Jan. 13, which sent Mr. Howe and the driver of the other car to hospital.

She tried it several times, the table, bits of suet — and a basin of water.

Just try bird-watching, you will find many strange characteristics with every bird different.

Besides learning about the feathered folks, one can enjoy a tree, unfettered aviary outside your window, with little trouble or expense.

A bag of chick feed from certain stores, crumbs from the table, bits of suet — and a basin of water.

Then watch the fun. You'll see greedy birds and police birds: some who will fight for every grain and those who wait patiently for a chance to nip in for a feed.

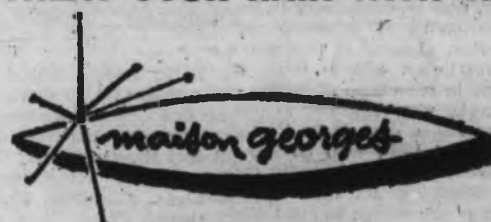

You will undoubtedly be saving many lives of the birds who will be in your garden in the spring to eat the bugs and worms that infest your produce, for these birds who come now are insect eaters.

This way they will pay you back for your kindness.

Most of the towhees and juncos will be migrating to other parts eventually, but some towhees stay all the year round, just as the song sparrow does.

Sailors Still Sailors... But

'Royal' Separate Services Get Deep Six Today

By MARK DICKINSON.

The Royal Canadian Navy ceased to exist this morning. So did the Royal Canadian Air Force and the Canadian Army.

At midnight, the three services officially fell under one title: The Canadian Armed Forces.

New Ensign

The only sign of change today will be a new flag fluttering over defence department property.

The new Canadian Forces ensign is a white flag, with the Canadian flag in the upper left quarter and the new insignia of the unified force prominent on the right side.

Complete unification is not expected until early 1972.

Defence Minister Leo Cadieux described the official proclamation of the Canadian Armed Forces Reorganization Act as:

"A step in an evolutionary process — a very important step, but only one in a series."

Began in '64

The White Paper that spelled out the roles and missions of the Canadian forces and forecast unification was submitted to the House of Commons in March, 1964.

In July that year, a chief of defence staff was established to replace chiefs of individual services.

And the next month, chief of defence staff and heads of new branches and Canadian Forces headquarters were appointed.

The Reorganization Act, Bill C-243, was presented to Parliament in December, 1966, and given final reading last April.

Tasks Ahead

For the past eight months, headquarters staffs have been busy rewriting Queen's Regulations and Orders, and other orders and instructions, for today's official proclamation.

The main tasks ahead are the completion of the personnel structure, the implementation of a common system of supply and administration and the introduction of whatever uniform is decided upon as the result of current trials.

It is expected the force will be fully equipped with a new uniform by 1971. Reserves will get the uniform later.

"Officially, we'll still be 'sailors,' 'soldiers' and 'airmen' after Thursday," a spokesman said.

"And we'll still identify ourselves, less officially of course, as 'navy,' 'army' and 'air force' for a while yet."

"New allegiances will develop gradually, because a new uniform and unified procedures and practices throughout the force can't be taken into effect overnight," he said.

"At the same time, the men will remain loyal to the traditional identification of the units to which they belong — the ship, the squadron, the regiment, the headquarters."

QUIT CLINIC B.C. URGED

McGeer

The provincial government was told by Patrick McGeer (L-Point Grey) in the legislature Wednesday to get out of the business of acute psychiatric care.

Mental patients in this province are denied the full advantages of modern psychiatry and made to suffer needlessly because the system used in provincial mental health services is wrong, the Liberal member said.

He called on the government "to face your moment of truth" and said as a start it should get out of the Crease Clinic section of Riverview where only two qualified psychiatrists care for more than 300 acute patients. Five other doctors — not qualified psychiatrists — assist them.

'CALL NEW TEAM'

Dr. McGeer, a medical scientist, told the government: "You can't run the hospital. You can't staff it. You can't provide after-care for the patients. Get out and call in a new team."

He added: "If this were a private hospital instead of a government hospital you would order its doors closed."

Health Minister Black, who was absent from his seat when Dr. McGeer began his blistering attack, returned at this point. He interrupted the Liberal member asking: "Is that the psychiatrists' brief you're reading from?"

DOORS OPENED

Dr. McGeer replied that he was suggesting the only course of action which would solve the recurring crisis in mental health services in the province. He added failure to do so would mean that next session the minister once more would be charging an opposition plot.

Crease Clinic must be put under the B.C. Hospital Insurance Service and its doors opened to the 100 qualified psychiatrists in the Lower Mainland who at present are not allowed to treat their patients in Riverview.

'FIRST STEP'

Let these psychiatrists admit their patients to Crease Clinic and look after them, said Dr. McGeer. He added: "Better still, turn Crease Clinic into a community general hospital and trade some of its beds for additional psychiatric beds in lower Mainland hospitals."

"This would be a start," he said, "the first step in a drive to get the province out of the psychiatric business."

B.C. Pledge by 1970

Coal Order Kicks Off Superport

By IAN STREET
Legislative Reporter

British Columbia will see to it that the first shipments of a $650,000,000 order of Fernie coal for Japan will flow through a new superport at Roberts Bank by 1970, Premier Bennett promised Wednesday night.

This will be done, hopefully in co-operation with Ottawa under a proposed federal-provincial harbor authority, but failing that by B.C. alone under the provincial harbors board legislation passed last spring, Mr. Bennett said.

Referring to a B.C. proposal for joint action on the Roberts Bank project, the premier said: "We're pushing for it, we want it, and we're ready to set it up right away."

The provincial government is ready to contribute $5,000,000 in "seed money" to get the project started, matching a similar amount promised by Transport Minister Paul Hellyer in Ottawa, just as soon as agreement is reached with federal authorities, Mr. Bennett added.

When asked about an apparent condition in the contract signed early Wednesday in Tokyo requiring a guarantee within 60 days that the superport will go ahead, he snapped: "I make no guarantees to anyone."

The responsibility of this government to the people of B.C. is for action, the premier said. He added: "There never has been any doubt about Roberts Bank going ahead. We hope it will be done in co-operation with the federal government; but, in any case, we will go ahead."

'An Awful Lot for B.C.'

B.C.'s side of the bargain could be approved "within two days," said Mr. Bennett, but federal participation might take longer to work out. He urged Ottawa to act with all possible speed so that the project could get started.

"It will do an awful lot for Vancouver and B.C. when this bulk-handling port is in operation," the premier said. "It will go around the world in shipping circles because this is Canada's key outlet to the great Pacific market."

Mr. Bennett said he felt the CPR and the Great Northern would share the traffic of Fernie coal to Roberts Bank, "perhaps 50-50."

Commercial Transport Minister Robert Bonner, who recently talked to Kaiser Steel officials in Oakland, Calif., about rail freight handling of Fernie coal bound for Japan, said the economics of the contract — 51,000,000 tons over 15 years — demand new port facilities.

He added that experts from the B.C. Energy Board would study the terms of the agreement over the next few days and following this period there

Divebombers Hammer Cong

SAIGON (UPI)—Allied planes today divebombed Viet Cong strongholds in Saigon's Chinatown and more U.S. tanks and troops smashed against guerrilla invaders in South Vietnam's battle of the cities.

The planes struck guerrilla units holed up in the maze of shanty streets and alleys of Cholon, Saigon's sister city and longtime Viet Cong haunt.

Other Viet Cong units battled from pagoda grounds and rooftops throughout the city and U.S. Lt. Gen. Frederick Weyand said 2,000 to 2,500 guerrillas had been deployed in the capital. He warned they had the power to keep up their offensive.

TANKS CALLED IN

U.S. commanders ordered American troops and tanks in from the jungle and sent them against the unprecedented Viet Cong sweep hitting more than a dozen South Vietnam cities.

In Washington, President Johnson's advisers were reported predicting fresh Viet Cong attacks plus the threatened invasion by 50,000 North Vietnamese troops poised on the northern border. In Saigon, U.S. Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker conferred with President Nguyen Van Thieu of South Vietnam who has ordered his nation under martial law for the first time to counter the Viet Cong invasion of the cities.

NEAR PALACE

Across the streets from Thieu's marble palace, GIs today raced up ladders and smashed into a Viet Cong machinegun nest that had been peppering the heart of Saigon. In the slums of southwestern Saigon, guerrillas battled allied troops from the grounds of the tin-roofed An Quang Pagoda. From the pagoda, a monk in quavering voice told UPI by telephone that the bullets were falling "like raindrops."

According to military spokesmen the fighting was stiffer elsewhere. In Hue, the ancient imperial capital 400 miles northeast of Saigon and just below the North Vietnam border, American marines were reported to have smashed into the northern half of the city which the Communists had seized Wednesday.

Seamen Pay Tribute

Coffin symbolizing death of 18-year-old Royal Canadian Navy gets reverent tribute Wednesday in final hours before RCN lost its name to Canadian Armed Forces. Lt. Wayne Weller, left, in navy for 14 years, and Lt. James Radford, five years serviceman, built casket aboard HMCS Cowichan and plan to bury it at sea Feb. 18. (Jim Ryan)

'Satellite' Care Set For Disturbed Young

By JOHN MATTERS

A network of cottage-type centres throughout B.C. for the treatment of emotionally disturbed children was proposed Wednesday by Health Minister Wesley Black. The whole regional mental health centre program would be expanded by 50 per cent this fiscal year.

Each local centre would be able to handle eight to 12 children in the communities where, in most cases, they have been raised and have their families.

The health minister, speaking in the throne-speech debate, said the new centre in Burnaby for treatment of emotionally-disturbed children would be the principal ingredient of the plan. The 100-bed unit will open this year.

FOR TRAINING

In addition to handling the most difficult cases, Burnaby will also be the place for training the staff which will work in the satellites.

"This plan will not evolve overnight," the minister said later in an interview. "We have to go slow. We are not trying to touch all the bases at one time."

It could not be ascertained if the proposal would alter the status of Sevenoaks, the Family and Children's Service agency which has facilities for the treatment of about 25 emotionally-disturbed children in Victoria.

Most of its financing is from provincial sources.

Mr. Black suggested homes could be bought in the local

Benson Hopeful

NHA Bid Will Aid Purchases

OTTAWA (CP) — Treasury Board President E. J. Benson hopes to speed a legislative amendment through Parliament this month that could halve down payments on NHA homes.

He is looking for informal pledges from the Conservatives and New Democrats to pass the measure with little debate. The government will at all costs avoid a full-scale housing debate before the current session of Parliament ends in March.

On a home with an assessed lending value of $19,000, the existing formula would provide a maximum loan of $16,550, indicating a down-payment requirement of at least $2,450.

The new formula would permit the home buyer to borrow 95 per cent of the lending value to a limit of $18,000. On the $19,000 home, the individual could borrow up to the full $18,000, leaving him with a down payment of only $1,000.

Separatism Talk 'Pure Politics'

Premier Bennett said Wednesday night he wants to make it clear that "all this talk about separatism is pure partisan politics" on the part of the NDP and Liberals.

He made the comment outside the legislature, adding: "We're Canadians first, last and all the time, and if Canada ever breaks up, B.C.

will be the last to go. But I don't think it ever will."

The first 100 years of Confederation were the hardest, Mr. Bennett said, adding he was confident the country was going to solve its difficulties.

But he rejected outright a suggestion made by the Liberals in the legislature Wednesday afternoon that representatives of both opposition parties in B.C. accompany him to Ottawa for the federal-provincial conference on constitutional issues, starting Monday.

Patrick McGeer (L-Point Grey) said the government shouldn't approach the conference from a narrow political point of view. He suggested Opposition Leader Robert Strachan for the NDP and Liberal leader Ray Perrault be added to the B.C. delegation.

"This is the way to get a broad point of view from B.C., and we should do no less," said Dr. McGeer. Mr. Perrault later issued a statement which said the premier had been advised that "Ottawa views with favor" inclusion of provincial opposition party members.

Mr. Bennett, when asked whether he would act on the request, replied, "The Liberal party is doing a great job here, and underline that 'great'."

Mr. Strachan, also asked to comment, said he hadn't been invited, but would like to attend the Ottawa conference. He said: "If we are examining the constitution of Canada, every shade of political thought should be heard."

Veteran Jet Finds Peace
At Royal Roads Display

An RCAF Sabre Mark V aircraft has made its last landing.

The jet is the air force contribution to the environment display being assembled at Royal Roads Military College.

Later this year, an army Sherman tank and a navy four-inch gun will complete the display in front of Hatley Castle.

The history of the jet aircraft dates back to 1956, when it was part of the 442 Air Defence Squadron at Sea Island, Vancouver.

The plane was transferred in 1958 to Chatham, N.B., where it was employed as an interceptor as part of the North American defence system.

After 2,000 flying hours, the jet could no longer meet safety requirements, an official said, and was scheduled for write-off. Instead of normal disposal, it was stripped of all fittings and equipment and shipped to Royal Roads for display.

It was lowered onto a 15-foot concrete pedestal last Wednesday.

The capital region's three school districts will offer their high schools to the provincial government as emergency vocational training centres.

Today's
Speakers

Labor and Education Minister Leslie Peterson will be the first speaker when the throne speech debate resumes at 2 p.m. today. He will be followed by Leo Nimick (NDP, Kootenay), Cyril Sheldford (SC, Okanagan) and Fred Vallancey (NDP, Burnaby-Willingdon). At the night sitting, speakers will be Herbert Brach (SC, Esquimalt) and Dave Barrett (NDP, Coquitlam).

Hellyer
Here
Saturday

Executive members of local Liberal associations will hear Paul Hellyer speak Saturday at the Red Lion Inn. He is the first of the declared party leadership contenders to speak locally.

Paul Martin will be in Vancouver today and has issued invitations to Vancouver Island party members to meet him at the Hotel Vancouver. There are no plans for him to visit Victoria.

Trustee spokesmen for the Greater Victoria, Sooke and Saanich school boards made the decision Wednesday.

They met with district superintendents to plan expansion of the area's post-secondary vocational training facilities.

INTERIM HOUSING

The school board will offer the vocational training wings of eight senior high schools as interim housing until a regional vocational school is built.

They will ask an immediate meeting with deputy education minister Dr. Neil Perry and provincial vocational training officials.

NEARLY READY

Plans are now almost complete, reported Greater Victoria adult education director Jack Dalgleish, who conferred last week with government officials.

"They expect to have the school started before the end of 1968, provided the money is available," said Mr. Dalgleish.

Peter Bunn, chairman of the Greater Victoria School Board, remarked:

THREE-YEAR WAIT

He predicted a three-year wait for the school.

Earlier this month a survey of the three school districts showed 783 students who said they would take vocational training if it were available.

It was suggested at Wednesday's meeting that the new high school shops could be used after regular school hours for job training. Consultation with the department of education would show what courses could be taught, said trustees.

SAVE MILLIONS

"A plan like this might save the province millions," he suggested.

Mr. Bunn added:

"The schools have got to be used more."

"We have proved a need for vocational training and we are offering the facilities to help fill the gap."

Request for Fee Boost

Hospital's Bid Withdrawn

The Cedars private hospital is no longer asking Victoria to pay more for the accommodation of welfare patients, but Glengarry and Glenwarren are still pressing their claims for higher fees.

In a letter received Wednesday at City Hall, Cedars administrator Mrs. L. deMacedo withdrew a request for additional social assistance benefits.

She refused to give any reason for the change of attitude.

William Oshland, administrator of Glengarry and Glenwarren private hospitals, said they were continuing to press for payments of bills submitted to the city in excess of the $230 monthly payment for each patient.

The issue arose last December when the two hospitals asked the city to increase their payments, or to seek other accommodation for the welfare patients.

Later, Welfare Minister Dan Campbell said the allowance would be increased by $15 a month, which was still $30 short of the hospital rates.

The hospitals said they would bill the city for $12,000, the difference between what the city paid and hospital charges over the preceding six months.

"It's a pity that these patients should be used like pawns in a chess game in the wrangling over this matter," said Mr. Oshland.

"It's not their fault that they don't have the money to pay for their own care. There are many reasons for running out of money, and it doesn't take long to run through savings if a person needs private hospital care."

HIGHER RATES

Three hospitals — two in Victoria and one in Vancouver — which were once private hospitals have been taken over as non-profit concerns.

"These hospitals, which don't make any profits, are now receiving higher rates than we are, and they don't have to pay taxes as we do," said Mr. Oshland.

There are higher rates, he said, at both Mount St. Mary and St. Mary Priory. Some allowance is included for different nursing services given some patients.

Police Threaten Action
If Pictures Published

Saanich police Wednesday threatened obscenity action if the University of Victoria's student Martlet Magazine publishes photographs which it has so far been unable to get past its own printers.

The pictures were to have been printed Monday night but the magazine's publisher, Acme Buckle Printers, reportedly refused to reproduce them.

The magazine, a supplement of the student newspaper, The Martlet, contained pictures printed more than 2½ years ago in an avant-garde U.S. magazine, the Evergreen Review.

They are photographs of welded sculpture representing couples in various sexual poses. Saanich Det.-Sgt. Robin Stewart said Wednesday he had a meeting earlier in the day with municipal prosecutor John McIntyre and Robert Watt, publications director of the student Alma Mater Society.

He said he handed Mr. Watt a letter which read:

"We have perused the photographic materials which you tell me was to have been in the above edition of the Martlet Magazine, and it is our opinion that publication of this material will be subject to prosecution."

Det.-Sgt. Stewart refused further comment.

Mr. Watt said Wednesday that he was personally opposed to publication of the photos, but did not order the printer not to publish them.

The decision was made by Art Mauger, manager of Acme Buckle, said Mr. Watt.

The pictures are accompanied by an article written by Professor Richard Grooms of the university's division of art and art history.

By A. H. MURPHY

Mayor Hugh Stephen said Wednesday that the law forbidding the sale of contraceptives was "stupid and obsolete" and one of several which brought all enforcement into contempt.

The fabric of freedom under the law is all that stands between society and utter chaos, and laws which by common consent are almost universally ignored weaken the whole structure, the mayor told members of the Victoria Canadian Club.

Another such law, he added, was that which forbade the sale of sweepstake tickets.

"In these days of civil liberty and action leagues, the job of law enforcement is becoming extremely complex, and there is a tendency to forget that such liberty is predicated upon observance. "This observance must be enforced, whether the laws themselves are good or bad, and must be continued until the laws are changed by legislative process," Mayor Stephen said.

Ranging far afield in his discussion of This Job of Mayor, the chief magistrate told club members that municipal government was facing an enormous challenge. If it was to remain resilient enough to cope in the next 25 years, he said, it would have to develop swifter and more efficient decision-making machinery.

Adoption of the city manager system was one method of meeting the challenge, but even so it was not always easy for city council to recognize where policy began and ended. A matter involving $100,000 might represent a routine administrative decision, and one concerning a few cents a major change in policy.

One of the major facets of his job, the mayor felt, was that of establishing priorities. And it was not easy. How, he asked, would one rate such issues as the shortage of hospital beds, the needs for a sewage disposal system, traffic congestion, housing and juvenile delinquency? Improved relationships between Victoria and adjacent municipalities were a source of satisfaction, the mayor said. For many years, he said, conflict had been both profitless and stultifying. Now there was a recognition that problems did not stop at boundaries.

This, coupled with the development of the regional concept, had practically removed parochialism, he said.
